Partially Restored in Measure

NO RELIEF ITEM

Heil Recommended $66-
700,000, Committee
$68,500,000

Madison—(P)—The legislative joint finance committee reported to the assembly for passage today a biennial budget bill containing appropriations $1,726,246 higher than the total recommended by Governor Heil.

The committee proposed increases in varying amounts through virtually all branches of the state service, but these sums were still below amounts requested at the lengthy budget sessions.

The committee recommended for the two fiscal years beginning July 1 a total of $68,509,379, as compared with the governor's recommendation of $66,783,133.

It allowed $520,000 more for common school aids, restored $384,800 of the million dollar cut previously applied to the budget of the university of Wisconsin and increased penal and charitable aids by $469,360.

For the state teachers colleges the committee restored $41,500 of the reduction of approximately $500,000 proposed by the governor.

5 Per Cent Increase

The various boards, commissions and departments operating in the capitol would receive $199,616 more than the governor allowed. Distributed over the numerous agencies involved the latter would amount to an increase of around 5 per cent, officials estimated.

Other committee increases included: agricultural aids, $22,000; Stout institute, $29,000; Platteville Mining school, $14,850; Grand Army home at Waupun, $15,120.

The budget bill was reported by Assembly Chairman P. Bradley McIlvire, of Lancaster, and Senate Chairman Otto P. Mueller, of Milwaukee, both Republicans. They said the committee vote was virtually unanimous.

The bill will not be printed until next week and the chairman predicted that from present indications it probably will take its usual course, coming up for consideration first in the assembly.

Chairman Mueller said the bill contained no appropriations for relief aids to counties.

He asserted the relief problem would have to be met in the general revenue bill which must follow or accompany the adoption of a budget, since official estimates place the appropriations at more than $20,000,000 higher than estimated receipts.

Also involved in consideration of the budget is the question of the administration's sweeping reorganization program, which affects many departments and agencies involved.

Pass Bill to Exempt
Legislative Workers
From Civil Service

Madison—(P)—The assembly, acting under suspension of the rules, voted today in favor of exempting legislative employees from civil service and set up a committee to conduct its own investigation of the hiring of non-certified employees.

The action was taken as Norris F. Maloney, district attorney of Dane county, neared completion of a John Doe probe in which he said witnesses admitted that assembly civil service workers contributed from their salaries to make jobs for 14 others who failed to pass examinations.

Look Out Now,
No Politicizing!

A "Save the Circus" movement is being headed by the Circus Fans Association of America. Very deserving. The right sort of circus provides wholesome amusement to old and young, to the rich and the financially so-so. But, with one national and 45 state capitals in the U.S.A. besides uncounted county offices and city halls, the question is: Which particular circus are they going to save? (Maybe they'll advertise in The Post-Crescent classified want-ads.) Maybe not. Anyway, here's one that brought results:

MAYOR TAKES OVER

Mayor Bryce Smith (above), of Kansas City, announced that he was "stepping in" and taking power beyond that given him by the city charter, following the arrest of a uniformed police officer on a federal narcotics charge and seizure of alcohol by agents of the U. S. alcohol tax unit. City Manager Henry F. McElroy tendered his resignation to Mayor Smith, who immediately accepted.

DeLain Is Again Declared Winner In Vote Recount

Narrows 6th Ward
Margin to 6 Votes

The city council this morning recounted the votes for alderman in the Sixth ward and declared Peter DeLain the winner over Harvey G. Kittner by six votes.

On the basis of the original count, DeLain won the council post from Kittner by seven votes. In the recount this morning, DeLain's count remained the same, 329 votes, while Kittner's total went from 322 to 323 votes. Nine blank ballots were found.

Kittner sought the recount because he believed a mistake was made in counting ballots in the Sixth ward election, he said in his appeal to the council.

The recount was the second coming from the April 4 election. Rudolph H. Kubitz appealed for a new tally in the Fourth ward. The recount revealed Carl A. Renfeldt the winner by one vote. On the basis of the original count, he was winner by three votes.

The council this morning also made several technical changes in the specifications furnished bidders on the floodlighting of Spencer street athletic field. Originally there were to be three separate contracts, electrical, poles and cross-arms and hardware. A bidder objected to part of the specifications on the grounds that they prevented him from submitting an offer.

President Signs Relief Measure

$100,000,000 Appropriation
Is $500,000,000
Less Than He Asked

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt signed today the measure making available an additional $100,000,000 for relief.

The amount approved recently by congress after a long controversy, was $500,000,000 less than President Roosevelt originally had asked.

The request was cut in both house and senate by coalitions of Republicans and economy-minded Democrats.

The president said the reduction would force a cut in the number of work relief jobs.

Senate economy leaders claimed, however, that $100,000,000 plus money which the WPA has already been granted would permit the agency to maintain its program without reductions.

The appropriation was the second since congress convened this year. The first, approved in February, was for $725,000,000, less by $150,000,000 than Mr. Roosevelt had asked. It was this reduction which prompted him to make the second request.

Move to Create New State Motor Vehicle Division

Sweeping Program

Single Directorships May Replace Two Commissions

Madison—(P)—More bills to carry out Governor Heil's sweeping reorganization program calling for consolidation of governmental functions and the elimination of three man commissions were introduced in the legislature today as committees hustled to get under tonight's deadline.

Included in the far-reaching proposals were these:
One state department of education to take over supervision of the University of Wisconsin, the state normal schools, the Wisconsin Mining school, Stout institute, the board of vocational education and the administration of secondary education.

A new state motor vehicle division to unify all regulations of automobiles and trucks.

One man directorships to replace the tax, public service and highway commissions, with their decisions to be judged by a board of review.

Pass Thomson Bill
While the program was unfolding the assembly unanimously passed and sent to the senate the Thomson bill to abolish the state board of control and create a new welfare department to handle the prisons, charitable and correctional institutions, pensions and relief aids.

This measure had been introduced several weeks ago and encountered no opposition.

Setting up of a consolidated department of education had been recommended to the legislature by Governor Heil in his first message. He also has declared that directors can function more efficiently and more satisfactorily than three man commissions.

The education bill would wipe out the University of Wisconsin board of regents, the normal school board and the mining school board and the present board of vocational education.

In their place would be created a single board of nine members to

Domestic Snarl Blamed in Deaths

Shoots Woman and Their Infant Son

Richmond, Ind.—(P)—A complex domestic snarl, Police Captain Ervin Houseman said today, apparently drove Theodore Thurston, 52-year-old WPA worker, to murder Mrs. William Boggs, 39, with whom he had lived several years but never married, and their 11-month-old son, then commit suicide in their five-room apartment here.

His bullet-riddled bodies were found last night by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Woods of Richmond, who had planned to take three-married Thurston and twice-married Mrs. Boggs to a prayer meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Woods, like other friends, had thought the couple was married.

Mrs. Woods told Coroner Russell Hiett, who indicated a verdict of murder and suicide, would be returned, that Mrs. Boggs left Thurston last week following a quarrel and stayed away "two or three days."

"I got her to agree to return to him Saturday night," Mrs. Woods said. "She did, and then Sunday they both promised to go to prayer meeting with us."

Houseman quoted Mrs. Harmon Davis of Richmond, Mrs. Boggs' mother, as saying her daughter had not divorced Boggs, or married Thurston.

The amount approved recently by congress after a long controversy, was $500,000,000 less than President Roosevelt originally had asked.

The request was cut in both house and senate by coalitions of Republicans and economy-minded Democrats.

The president said the reduction would force a cut in the number of work relief jobs.

Asks Sales Tax For Stabilizing Prices of Milk

Levy Intended to Aid

BILL INTRODUCED

Fond du Lac Assemblyman Is Sponsor of
New Legislation

Madison—(P)—Assemblyman Maurice Fitzsimons (D) Fond du Lac introduced a bill today for a 2 per cent general sales tax to assure Wisconsin dairy farmers at least $2.00 per hundredweight for their milk.

The bill provides that the revenues be used to stabilize the price at that figure whenever prevailing market quotations fall below it.

Through administrative machinery to be supervised by the department of agriculture and markets and the emergency board the farmers would be paid the difference between $2.00 and whatever they could get in the general market.

Names Exceptions
Fitzsimons would apply the tax to all sales except those involving farm products, newspapers and periodicals, real estate and food-stuffs.

He said if the revenues were more than sufficient to meet the specific purpose they would go into the state general fund.

Otto Mueller (R) Wausau, senate chairman of the finance committee said today the committee had taken the position it would consider a sales tax "only as a last resort" to raise funds to balance the state budget.

Mueller said various forms of levies had been discussed, including the Indiana plan of a gross income tax, upward revisions of the Wisconsin income tax and a variety of special levies on cigarettes and luxuries, but that the committee was now where near a decision on what kind of revenue bill it will sponsor.

Order Third Reading Of Bill to Prohibit Selling Below Cost

Madison—(P)—The assembly today ordered a third reading of a bill setting up fair trade practices for selling merchandise below cost to attract customers.

The measure, known as the "lost-leader" bill, exempts sales made for charitable purposes, perishable merchandise, bona fide clearance sales, and final liquidations.

The house discontinued for a time at least consideration of a bill setting up fair trade practices for barbers, beauticians, cleaners and dyers, and shoe rebuilders as debate was halted over question of parliamentary procedure.

The house refused to reconsider the vote by which it ordered to third reading a senate measure outlawing the issuance of trading stamps on the sale of minimum priced articles.

It occurred in a senate bill limiting the number of days compensation to go paid county board members, allowing 20 days in counties up to 20,000 population, 25 days from 20,000 to 100,000, and 30 days from 100,000 to 250,000.

Ask Funds to Complete Girls School at Oregon

Madison—(P)—With the recommendation of Governor Heil, the senate judiciary committee today introduced a bill appropriation $250,000 for completion of the construction and equipment of the Girls Industrial school at Oregon.

The committee also sponsored bills reducing the state athletic commission from five to three members, appointed by the governor for five year terms, and cutting automobile license fees by $1.

Senators Murray (R) Milwaukee, and Ingram (P) Eau Claire, introduced a joint resolution providing for the session's first proposed interim committee to study modern automobile title laws and make a report.

The committee on state and local government brought in a bill changing the date of the April judicial election from the first to the second Tuesday.

Assure Farmers Barter Scheme Wouldn't Upset U. S. Markets

Washington—(P)—The state department assured farmers today that the trade agreement's program is being abandoned and commercial policies reversed.

"This government is not seeking to force American surplus commodities into the world's markets by any scheme to exchange or barter them for strategic materials."

The idea now being explored is confined to the acquisition of strategic material, and strategic materials only, as reserves for national emergencies when necessary supplies of these materials from abroad might be cut off or greatly reduced, as in the case of widespread international conflict.

"One of the essential features of such an arrangement would be an agreement on the part of other governments as well as our own to hold the acquired stocks as reserves for war emergencies with entirely adequate arrangements for permanent withholding such stocks from commercial markets. Hence the plan, if any arrangements of this character can be successfully worked out, would not interfere with the trade agreements program or conflict with our commercial policies."

Mussolini Declares Italy
Will 'March Straight Ahead'

Rome—(P)—Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goerring, Reichsfuehrer Hitler's chief aide, was welcomed personally today by Premier Mussolini on his arrival here for conferences with Il Duce.

A hint of possible German-Italian action had been given earlier by Virginio Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, who declared the Rome-Berlin axis intended to push forward "the responsible plan of just rights and legitimate claims."

London—(P)—European tension was on the rise today as Anglo-French pledges to protect Greece and Rumania against aggression met an angry reception from Fascists and Nazis.

While inspired German comment described Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech yesterday as "bluff" and Premier Mussolini declared Italy would "march straight ahead," these developments highlighted the sensitive European situation:

1. Reliable Berlin sources said several ships of the German war fleet had left Kiel for maneuvers in Spanish waters starting April 18 and lasting about a month.

2. British authorities at Gibraltar, the fortress at the tip of the Spanish peninsula, set engineers to building barricades on the road to the "rock" and refused to permit motor vehicles to go in or out.

3. This action followed reports of concentrations of troops and arms on the Spanish side of the Gibraltar boundary.

Shore Leaves Canceled
4. Shore leaves for British sailors at Malta, fortified naval base near Sicily, were cancelled.

5. Poland called additional men to the colors, swelling the army of 1,000,000 regulars and reservists already under arms, as large forces of German troops were reported in Warsaw to have been concentrated at three points along the Polish frontiers.

Families of members of the British, French and other embassies in Warsaw prepared to leave for their homes.

6. The French war ministry announced it would resume immediately distribution in Paris of sand for protection against incendiary bombs, a measure which was discontinued after the signing of the Munich agreement last September.

7. Reports in London said many Netherlands business men were trying to arrange to transfer their business affairs from the Netherlands to London because of the "crisis feeling."

"On to Paris"
A crowd of 50,000 Fascists in Rome cried "On to Paris," as Mussolini in a speech declared Italy would "march straight ahead" in the future as she had in the past.

Il Duce's statement, although not mentioning Chamberlain's declaration of resistance by all Britain's power if Rumania and Greece find themselves "on to Paris."

Board Denies It Favors CIO, Scorns A. F. L. Proposals in Fight Against Modifying Act

NEW SENATOR

Springfield, Ill.—(P)—Governor Henry Horner today appointed Chairman James M. Slattery of the Illinois Commerce commission to the United States senate to succeed the late James Hamilton Lewis.

Slattery, 60 year old Chicago attorney, has been a close personal and political friend of the governor for a quarter century. He managed the 1936 and 1938 campaigns of Governor Horner's Democratic organization in Cook county.

New York City May Import Coal, LaGuardia Says

Mayor Appears at Deadlocked Operator-Mine Worker Conference

New York—(P)—New York City officials pondered alternative possibilities of importing foreign soft coal, or operating its own mine, as weary negotiators returned today to the task of seeking an end to the 14-day-old mine shut-down in the Appalachian area.

Representatives of operators and United Mine Workers of America appeared deadlocked in their negotiations for a new wage-and-hour agreement for the 338,000 soft coal miners, idle since March 31.

Sharp words marked the end of yesterday's session after Mayor LaGuardia had told of a steadily dwindling supply of coal for the city transit systems and power sources.

John L. Lewis, union leader, attacked when he called "all the concentrated arrogance of capital on that side of the table" and contended the miners had "no alternative. We'll fight it out now."

At issue was the question of the union shop, or elimination of the penalty clause for illegal strikes, the concession the miners ask in exchange for yielding its other proposals, and renewing of the old wage contract.

"The question at issue here had better be settled now than at some future date when the people of the country need coal worse than at this time," said Charles O'Neill, New York spokesman for the operators.

Mayor LaGuardia had told the conferees the city might have to import coal from Europe or consider leasing or purchasing mines.

AUGMENT PICKETS

Clinchfield, Va.—(P)—United Mine Workers continued to augment their picket force of upwards of 1,000 men today in an effort to organize the workmen of the Clinchfield Coal corporation, the only large group in this blundering field not affiliated with the United Mine Workers.

The miners here, which continued operation when the United Mine Workers quit work on April 1, pending negotiation of a new contract, were shut down today on orders of Lee Long, Clinchfield vice president, because of the tense situation.

Forty state troopers, under the direct command of Captain H. E. Nicholas, superintendent of state police, were concentrated here.

Yankee Clipper Is on Return Trip to U. S.

New York—(P)—Western Union reported today that the Yankee clipper arrived at Horta, the Azores, from Lisbon at 8:32 a. m. C.S.T.

Washington—(P)—The national labor relations board, storm center of a congressional drive to modify the Wagner act, renewed its stand today against amending the law and termed most proposed changes "definitely objectionable."

Denying that it favored the CIO, and criticizing some of the amendments proposed by the A. F. of L., the board said in a four-volume report to the senate labor committee:

"The board is not persuaded by its experience or by any arguments which have come to its attention that the act requires amendment at the present time."

Out of all the amendments offered so far in the senate, the board listed four which it said merited further consideration, "although objectionable in their present form."

Among them was one proposing that employers should have the right to file petitions for elections to determine employees' bargaining agents.

"We are of the opinion," the board said, "that to permit employers the unlimited right of filing such petitions would open the election machinery of the act to possible abuse. Nevertheless we believe study should be given to the feasibility of granting the right of petition subject to specific safeguards."

The others which the board said deserved attention included proposals relating to the board's power to determine the appropriate bargaining unit, notification to interested parties of hearings involving contracts, and the time limit between issuance of complaints and hearings.

"The remaining proposals in the bills before this committee," the report added, "are, in our opinion, definitely objectionable."

The board declared that an A. F. of L. proposal to redefine unfair labor practices would permit employers to interfere with the union activities of their workers. Discussing the A. F. of L. suggestions, the board said:

"We believe... that they would increase rather than alleviate industrial strife, that they will in the long run benefit neither industry nor any labor group, that they will lead to a tremendous growth of company unionism, that they will in short destroy freedom of self-organization and restore many of the conditions prevailing before passage of the act."

$5,000 Loss When Large Barn Burns

Fire Occurs at Harold Rehfeldt Farm, Route
2, Appleton

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the barn at the Harold Rehfeldt farm, route 2, Appleton, causing a loss of about $5,000 about 10 o'clock last night. The farm is situated just east of Highway 47 about four miles north of Appleton.

The Grand Chute fire department fought the blaze, but had to confine much of its effort to protecting the house. There was a strong south wind which showed the home with smoke. Seven firemen and more than a dozen neighbors battled the blaze. Embers falling on the hose lines put a couple out of commission and they had to be replaced. The firemen remained at the scene until after midnight.

All the cattle except one cow and a couple calves were saved from the barn. Some machinery including a hay loader, wagon and potato digger was destroyed. About 10 tons of hay and a small amount of grain also burned with the barn.

The conflagration lit the sky and could be seen for several miles. Hundreds of cars were attracted to the scene and a county traffic officer was on duty on Highway 47 to keep the traffic from congesting.

Labels Bill as Blow To State Education

Madison—(P)—O. H. Plenske, of Madison, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Education association, told the secondary school principals conference here today the Norton bill for a tax limitation on real estate would be a severe blow to education.

"Enactment of such a proposal would slash school budgets throughout the state and make it absolutely necessary for the legislature to adopt a sales tax to obtain revenues," he said.

The bill proposes a tax limit of 15 mills, with a maximum of 5 mills on homestead property valued at less than $3,000.

Other speakers included John Holzman, of Menasha; R. G. Heim, of Milwaukee; and Prof. J. Murray Lee, of the University School of Education.

ASKS HARMONY

Speech Interpreted as Reply to Isolation Advocates

Washington—(P)—President Roosevelt pledged the nation's economic support today to any Pan American country whose freedom is threatened by "economic pressure" from abroad.

Condemning aggression as "ridiculous" and "criminal," Mr. Roosevelt extended this government's promise of protection for the western hemisphere, already given for military attack, to inroads through business and commerce.

On annual Pan-American day, the president gave the old world a "living message" from the New World of a "will to peace" which "will have a voice in determining the order of world affairs."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke to the governing board of the Pan American union in the marble Pan American building. Without naming the aggressor nations or their dictators, but referring to statements made recently by Hitler and Mussolini, the chief executive stressed the ties binding Europe and the Americas.

His words, as if a reply to advocates of American isolation, were: "The American family of nations may also rightfully claim, now, to speak to the rest of the world. We Must Have Harmony

"The past generation in Pan American matters was concerned with constructing the principles and the mechanisms through which this hemisphere would work together. But the next generation will be concerned with the methods by which the old world can live together with the old."

"The issue is really whether our civilization is to be dragged into the tragic vortex of unending militarism punctuated by periodic wars, or whether we shall be able to maintain the ideal of peace, individuality and civilization as the fabric of our lives. We have the right to say that there shall not be an organization of world affairs which permits us of choice but to turn our countries into barracks, unless we are to be vassals of some conquering empire."

"Stake In World Affairs"
"The truest defense of the peace of our hemisphere must always lie in the hope that our sister nations beyond the seas will break the bonds of the ideas which constrain them

Ickes Would be Good Choice for Illinois Senator

Election in 1940 Would Mean Clear-Cut New Deal Issue, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — When Governor Horner of Illinois considers all the various persons who might represent the state of Illinois in the United States senate as a successor to the late J. Hamilton Lewis, he will have before him the name of Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior. So far as official Washington is concerned, its influence as exerted by the president might be considerable, because Governor Horner is a staunch friend and supporter of the New Deal.

There are many reasons which make Mr. Ickes the logical choice. He would, if appointed, come up for election in November, 1940. That is reason number one, because the issue at the polls is going to be pro or anti-New Deal, and no better exponent of New Deal philosophy, strategy, tactics or behavior could be found than the secretary of the interior. It would mean a clear-cut issue before the voters of Illinois.

Reason number two is that Secretary Ickes, who is sometimes called "Honest Harold," has administered the WPA along with the department of interior, a job involving the expenditures of billions of dollars, and there has been not the remotest suggestion of irregularity or scandal connected with his conduct of these two offices.

Public Record
Reason number three, however, is the most important of all. Mr. Ickes is one of the few members of the cabinet who has appeared before audiences on behalf of the administration from time to time, and hardly any other member of the cabinet has discussed as many public policies as he has. What the secretary has said in his addresses affords an insight into his views, and the chances are he would stand on his record of public utterance, for he is not the kind to back away for reasons of expediency so often employed by candidates for public office.

Under the parliamentary systems of government abroad, it is customary for a cabinet minister to stand for election. In a sense, the opportunity of having a cabinet secretary go before the people of a large state in a national election is a step to be encouraged rather than discouraged. It has many advantages. Thus, if Mr. Ickes were elected senator, he would find the pressure groups quite active and he would have the chance to do what so many liberals have often advocated but which so few of them practice when they hold elected office—he would be able to tell the pressure groups to jump into Lake Michigan. This might lose him a number of votes here and there, especially since whoever is elected senator in Illinois in 1940 will be up again in 1942 when the term of the late Senator Lewis expires. But it would be a significant test of fortitude in politics.

Test Of Liberalism
It would be an interesting test also of liberalism to have a man like Harold Ickes in the senate and subject to re-election within two years. Members of the senate who have convictions in one direction but cast ballots in another and defend their course on the ground that it's the only way for a good man to stay in the senate would look with eagerness to see how a man like Secretary Ickes fared.

So far as the administration is concerned, it might be loath to lose Harold Ickes, though, if the Republicans are going to win in 1940, there would have to be a loss of the services of the present secretary of the interior in January, 1941, anyway. If on the other hand, the Democrats are due to win, Mr. Ickes would be of more service in the senate as the spokesman of the administration than are some of the other Democrats hereabouts—that is, he would be able to represent more aggressively the administration point of view, the question of whether this would be any more effective than what a leader like Senator Barkley does being open to debate.

In some respects, Secretary Ickes resembles Senator Jim Reed of Missouri. He has as caustic a style of attack as anybody in recent years. His speeches attacking "big business" and the foreign dictators as well as newspaper owners and columnists have not been exactly the kind that a politician makes, for they are bound to stir up antagonisms which the average candidate would regard as superfluous, but maybe, like the New Deal itself, Harold Ickes would make a new sort of candidate and, if he is appointed now, he would have all the remainder of the present session and all of the January session of 1940 to learn just what concessions an elected public official has to make to that sovereign voice which, in a single day at the polls, decides whether even the most prominent and famous shall stay in power or be banished therefrom for ever more.

Commissioners Will Attend Conference At Camp April 22-23

Commissioners of the valley council of boy scouts will get acquainted with the new executive and talk over district problems at a conference at Gardner Dam Saturday and Sunday, April 22 and 23.

The conference will follow the annual meeting at Kaukauna April 20 at which the man who succeeds Walter Dixon will be introduced. The conference also will be a farewell get-together for Dixon, who has accepted a position with Boy Scouts of America in Kansas. Scoutmasters of the Valley council will hold their regular spring conference at Gardner Dam May 20 and 21, the valley council office announced today.

Road Committee Takes Bids on Oil, Gasoline

Sealed bids on 200,000 gallons of road oil and two 8,000-gallon tanks of gasoline are being taken by the county highway committee until 10 o'clock Monday morning. The committee yesterday made an inspection of roads in the county with Arnold Krueger, highway commissioner. The roads for the last two weeks have been in poor traveling condition because of the rapidly with which the frost left the ground. Highway crews have been busy repairing boils and sunken spots.

Concrete Warehouse Is Going Up on John St.

A crew of eight men is busy constructing a new warehouse for the Badger Wood Plug company at the foot of John street. The Koepke Construction company has the contract for the warehouse, which will be 32 feet square. The concrete blocks are being laid and it is expected the building will be finished in about two weeks.

Clintonville Pair Married 30 Years

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Klemp Honored at Surprise Party

Clintonville—Mr. and Mrs. Martin Klemp were honored with a surprise party Wednesday evening at their home on Eighth street, the occasion being their thirtieth wedding anniversary. About sixty relatives and friends were present. Cards and other games provided entertainment after which a lunch was served.

The marriage of Miss Dena Krueger to Martin Klemp, both of Clintonville, took place here in St. Martin Lutheran church on April 12, 1909. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. A. Holtz. For the following 29 years, Mr. and Mrs. Klemp resided on a farm three miles south of Clintonville on route 1. Last year they retired from farming and moved to their present residence. Although Mr. and Mrs. Klemp had no children of their own, they reared two of their twin nephews, Albert and Arthur Krueger. For the last twenty years the twins have made their home with the Klemps. The Klemp farm is now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Krueger.

North Division of the Congregational Dorcas society was entertained Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Herbert Bovee at her home on Torrey street.

Mrs. Lawrence Nass and Mrs. Lorene Dahn were hostesses to the Amity Division of the Dorcas society Thursday afternoon at the Herman Nass home on S. Bennett street.

Eighteen tables were in play at the last public card party of the season given by the Parent-Teachers Association at the high school gymnasium Wednesday evening. There were 14 tables of bridge and four tables of schafkopf. A lunch was served after the games. High prizes at bridge went to John Ewer, Lyle Elsbury, Arthur Johnson; Mrs. Harley J. Powell, Mrs. Albert Fritz and Mrs. Gertrude Schuri. High scores in schafkopf were won by Fred W. Lange and Mrs. August Bleck, while a special prize was awarded to Mrs. Vane Jensen.

The general committee in charge of the party included Mrs. Max Stieg, Mrs. J. H. Murphy and Clarence Zachow; while the lunch committee was headed by Mrs. Herbert Bovee.

Students to Get Tests for Health

Tuberculosis Exams Will Be Given Seniors, Eighth Graders

Kaukauna — On Monday and Tuesday Kaukauna physicians will give tuberculosis tests to high school seniors and eighth grade students of all Kaukauna schools. It was announced this morning. The program is a continuation of the campaign that was started and sponsored by the Outagamie County Medical society two years ago. The object of this program is an attempt to discover those individuals who have been infected with the tubercular germ.

Parents are urged to cooperate by signing the consent cards that will be given the students. The test itself is simple, painless and harmless, it was emphasized. "It is well known that only a small percentage of those who have thus harbored the germs ever develop the disease," the announcement ran. "When tuberculosis does result it usually has its beginning somewhere between the ages of 14 and 25 years, and discovered then in an early stage, it becomes a comparatively easy matter to effect a cure. Much progress has been made in reducing the incidence of tuberculosis through the campaign that has been carried out against the disease."

Remove House From Site of Post Office

Chilton — John Steenport has purchased the Bergelin home on Main street, and is having it torn down. He will rebuild it on another lot, making a two family apartment of it. The Bergelin property was purchased last year by the United States government, which will erect a new post office on the lot. It is expected that work on the post office will start May 1. Mrs. Arthur Lintner, who was struck by a car last week Thursday while walking from the Presbyterian church to her home, is reported to be making a satisfactory recovery.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

The Strategic Conflict

It is evident that the choice between war and peace rests with Hitler. He is the senior partner in the axis. On the other side it is evident that Great Britain and France and their allies could not take the offensive even if they wished to do so. They have no force that could strike quickly and successfully at the heart of Germany. It is probably still safe to assume, also, that Hitler has not yet taken the final decision, and that his decision will be determined by the outcome of the diplomatic maneuvers that are now in progress on all the frontiers of Germany, at all the entrances to the Mediterranean, and in the region from Hong Kong to Singapore.

On the part of the axis these maneuvers will have been successful if Germany is able to disintegrate an eastern front before it can be consolidated; if Germany and Italy can obtain command of the Mediterranean, severing the British and French communications with northern Africa and locking up Russia behind the Dardanelles; if Japan, which has already taken Hainan and then Spratly Island, uses them as stepping stones to the seizure of the oil, rubber, and tin of the Dutch East Indies and the British possessions of the far southern Pacific.

If this campaign is completed, British seapower will have been destroyed not only as an offensive but also as a defensive weapon. The axis will not only be able to defy a blockade but it will hold the strategic control over the main portions of the British Empire. The whole of northern Africa from Morocco to Egypt, the whole middle east from Turkey to India, will have been cut off from the power of the British Navy. Then the situation will have been prepared for vital demands on

Power of Air Fleet Not as Great Now

These developments would indicate that since Munich the airplane is no longer regarded either in Germany or in Great Britain as the decisive weapon. In both countries sea power is once more recognized as the weapon that really decides the outcome of a great war. Before Munich the airplane was sufficient to intimidate London and Paris and to immobilize the British Navy and the French army. But since Munich the airplane has become a tactical weapon, capable of inflicting damage, but not of deciding the issue.

There are several reasons for this, and they play a determining role in the present situation. In the first place, the British and French, though still inferior to Germany in the air, are now strong enough to be formidable; they have prepared themselves physically to make bombing dangerous and expensive, and they are able to retaliate, particularly against Italy.

Secondly, they are morally prepared to withstand the shock of aerial attack. In September they were not prepared. A nation which cannot be demoralized by air raids cannot be conquered by airplanes.

Thirdly the coalition has realized and perhaps the axis, too, that a massacre of civilians in London and Paris will arouse the fighting spirit of the whole British Empire, and would almost certainly, as Mr. Hoover has warned them, have a profound effect on the American people.

It is not wholly improbable that the airplane as a weapon of intimidation against civilians is now a boomerang, and there are competent observers who believed that, weighing all the consequences, it may not be used for such a general massed attack as people believed was imminent in September.

Sea Power Is Focus Of All Calculations

Be that as it may, this much at least is clear, that sea power in the widest sense of that term is now the focus of all the calculations in both camps. Sea power, of course, is more than the fleet of warships; it is everything, armies, airplanes, forts, harbors, bases, mine fields, merchant ships and warships which can control the movement of vital supplies.

It is this fact that differentiates the present situation so radically from that of last summer. For underlying all the minor aspects of last summer's crisis, including the British state of mind, the French disunion, the weakness of the air force and what not, there was the great fact that Czechoslovakia was beyond the effective reach of sea power, that it could have been conquered before a British blockade had begun to take effect.

In the present situation, on the other hand, every member of the potential coalition, including Poland, Rumania, Turkey, Greece and Russia, can be reached directly or indirectly by sea power operating through Gibraltar, Suez, and the Dardanelles. That goes a long way toward explaining the willingness of Great Britain to offer them guarantees. The supplies that sea power controls can reach these countries. It also explains the eagerness of Great Britain to form alliances with them. For each of them enhances the effectiveness of sea power in the event of war and none constitutes a new liability. In so far as they fight for their own independence they close a hole in the blockade; in so far as they fail to fight, or are defeated, the line of the blockade is still to be established somewhere behind them.

It is dismal but necessary to think in terms of the strategy of war. For those are the terms in which European statesmen are thinking. There is no other way of understanding what is happening except in terms of strategy.

But that does not mean that war is inevitable. There is at least an even chance, in my view better than an even chance, that the strategic struggle will be worked out to the end without war, that the outcome of the crisis will be the outcome that generals and statesmen believe

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

Washington—The State department has just heaved a sigh of relief after terminating one of the most crucial episodes of international prodding in years.

Objective of the State department, or perhaps it is more accurate to say of the president himself, has been to push, goad or cajole the British Empire into the realization that democracy is at stake in Europe.

All this took place during a period of diplomatic double-crossing in which British banks actually were lending money to Germany for rearmament, and the Federation of British Industries was negotiating a secret pact with German industry in violation of the Anglo-American trade agreement.

British double-crossing finally became so flagrant that when Roosevelt, Hull and Welles got the full drift of it, they sent a virtual ultimatum to Chamberlain declaring that as far as the United States was concerned, Great Britain could fish or cut bait.

Czechoslovak Invasion
Part of all of this may be denied, but the actual facts are that tension in U. S.-British relations came to a head on or about March 16, one day after Hitler had swallowed the remains of Czechoslovakia.

It will be recalled that on March 14, just as the entire world realized Hitler was about to break his pledge to the Czechs, American correspondents in London cabled that the British government saw no cause for alarm. This was because the British Foreign office had called in United States correspondents and told them that the British government was unperturbed.

British serenity continued next day even with Nazi troops actually on the march, and it was not until two days later that the British government began to burst forth in a fine flare of righteous indignation over Hitler's violation of his pledge at Munich.

Reason for the British right-about-face was partly British public opinion. But in the interim, also, Chamberlain had received from Roosevelt the message just referred to, in which the President warned that Britain could expect no more support from the United States, moral, material, or through the sale of airplanes, if the Munich policy continued.

In effect, Roosevelt bluntly asked whether Britain was a Nazi nation or a democracy, and warned that the United States would watch Chamberlain's future policy for the answer.

History After Munich
To get the full picture of British double-crossing, and to understand what led up to this crisis in Anglo-American relations, it is necessary to trace events after the Munich crisis last October.

Following Munich, the Roosevelt administration instructed Ambassador Joe Kennedy to suggest to Chamberlain that the only thing Hitler understood was the straight arm, and that it would be an excellent idea to call an abrupt halt on appeasement.

Supposedly Chamberlain agreed. Whereupon Roosevelt and his State department mapped out a program carefully calculated to show Hitler that he could give the democracies no more lip.

To this end, the United States deliberately recalled its ambassador from Berlin, deliberately planned that Secretary Ickes should scold the Nazis and that Acting Secretary Welles, in turn, should scold the German charge d'affaires for his effrontery in protesting. It was no accident that Roosevelt's address to Congress on the state of the nation vigorously slapped down the dictators and asked for heavy air armament.

Furthermore, American soundings taken in Europe all showed that this strategy was having an excellent effect, that Hitler and Mussolini both were worried.

British Chicanery
But about this time, the State department began to get wind of what the British were up to. In the first place, British bankers had engaged in a scramble for business in Sudetenland. They had even started making deals with the Germans before the cession of the Sudetens was decided upon at Munich.

Later it was discovered that whenever the State department would take a stern stand against Hitler, Sir John Simon or other Tory members of the British cabinet would trot around to the Nazis and tell them that Britain was not in sympathy with these United States pronouncements.

The State department had known for some time that Sir Auckland Geddes, former British ambassador to Washington and head of the Rio Tinto mines in Spain, had been subsidizing France. But now it developed that France was sending the money back to Germany to buy arms. Thus the British were subsidizing Hitler.

Even more startling, it was discovered that where the Nazis were not able to barter, as with Sweden which demands cash, British banks were loaning money outright to Germany to finance rearmament. Of course they were getting a nice fat interest rate.

Also it dawned on high officials here that no less a person than Prime Minister Chamberlain, himself, is heavily interested in German armament, his Imperial Chemical Industries owing a good block of stock in the Dynamit Actien Gesellschaft and in the giant I. G. Farbenindustrie A. G., largest trust in Germany.

Finally, just before the last Czech crisis, the State department learned that the powerful Federation of British Industries, in which several cabinet members are represented, had worked out a secret trade agreement with the Nazis undercutting the United States and the Anglo-American trade agreement so laboriously negotiated by Cordell Hull.

United States Sees Red
By this time, the sentiment of Roosevelt, Hull, et al., toward the British would have burnt up the printed page. Their almost inescapable conclusion was that the oligarchy which actually rules Britain at heart was anxious to preserve the dictators, and secretly feared the strengthening of democratic governments similar to the Popular Front in France or the Ne-grin regime in Spain.

All this came to a head with the Hitler march into Prague plus the occupation of Memel. Roosevelt issued his strong warning in between these two events.

Indications are that even the British Tories now are worried. They admit their mistake in trusting Hitler after the Munich agreement. There is no question regarding the status of British public opinion. But both Hull and Roosevelt still are keeping their fingers crossed about the British cabinet and wondering whether it will stay put.

Four Players Receive Perfect Bridge Hands

Berkeley, Calif.—Four bridge hands the statisticians figured would come up but one in 158,000,000 deals threw the Berkeley Country club's invitational bridge into a turmoil.

Around the table sat Mrs. Sam H. Hardin, Mrs. J. S. Cassidy, Mrs. N. P. Goelzer and Mrs. G. C. Johnson. Suddenly Mrs. Johnson gasped, "Why, I have 13 hearts!"

Mrs. Cassidy echoed: "And I have all the clubs."

Mrs. Hardin, who was a partner of Mrs. Goelzer, the dealer, had 13 spades and Mrs. Goelzer had 13 diamonds.

When the commotion quieted, Mrs. Hardin bid seven spades, the others passed and threw in their hands and 1,510 points were scored to the account of Mrs. Hardin and Mrs. Goelzer for their non-vulnerable grand slam.

Wiley Affirms Stand Against Funds for WPA

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington — Senator Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls Republican, has again spoken in the senate against further appropriations for the works progress administration.

The senator suggested that all salaries in WPA be limited to the amount paid to workmen, ("the common workman gets $50 or $60," he said) and that the states and municipalities be allowed to administer all funds. These two steps, he said, would put an end to the "dissipation of the people's money and the people's morale."

WISCONSIN NEEDS MORE REVENUE

An interview had with Governor Heil by the Post-Crescent Madison correspondent and published in last night's issue revealed that Wisconsin will need more income.

We say that because the governor indicated his purpose of increasing old age income from about $20 a month, the present average, to $35. That is a 70 per cent increase, which, covering the state over, will mean millions.

We confess that we are among those who feel a touch of shame when we see aged persons who have lived good lives suffering for want of the essentials of existence. And any practical plan that will soften the harsh road of advancing years should raise with no one either envy or resentment.

No such plan, however, can even be considered unless with it is submitted the means of raising the money. That, of course, is the Jonah. Utter and final separation must be made from those harum-scarum political musketeers who appropriate money, borrow money, and spend money, but never raise any according to accepted and orthodox methods.

It may be suggested to the Governor that the most important thing is to get a new name for the sales tax. It is with us anyway. But it must never be so dominated. The man who buys a ten-cent package of cigarettes pays a 60 per cent sales tax and never bats an eye. Sales taxes of from 25 to 50 per cent will be found on gasoline the country over. But instances like these have grown with the years and generally were originated singly.

If Wisconsin can only find some article that occasionally leaves a bad taste in the mouth and yet is quite indispensable, and may be taxed and still its sales encouraged, it will have the right to exclaim, "Eureka."

In fact the man in our political life who can produce this miracle will be entitled to great honors.

"SHORT OF ARMS" BECOMES "SHOW OF FORCE"

Even before a shot is fired in the next world's war Mr. Roosevelt, already adrift on the fast current, leaps from one cake of ice called "Short of Arms" to the next one, a little farther out in the stream, and named "Predominant Show of Force." Of course he still wouldn't go to war. But now he is going to show the arms that we will not use and all for their beneficent effect upon the desperadoes in central Europe.

Mr. Webster it was who once declared that a storm-tossed mariner at sea invariably took his bearings to find out exactly where he was so he might show some intelligence in the direction followed. We would do well to survey this European situation a little more carefully.

Mr. Chamberlain, who is a statesman, in one of his recent speeches to Parliament blamed the entire Czech-German controversy on the Treaty of Versailles and the failure "of the statesmen of the last 20 years to take a broader and more enlightened view of their duty." What duty?

How can people interpret this language other than a purposeful lessening of the reins upon Hitler so that Germany might get elbow room, products and materials and permit the wrath inspired by her wounded pride to subside?

How can anyone interpret the conduct of Britain and France in respect to the Ethiopian adventure of Mussolini except by way of pretending opposition and yet permitting the capture of the East African land? And now Albania?

We have no doubt that France and England lack confidence in the word, purpose or stability of either Hitler or Mussolini. Who doesn't? But to date, we believe that our great sisterly democracies are perfectly content with what has transpired insofar as Czechoslovakia, Memel, Ethiopia and Albania are concerned. Their problem is whether, giving the dictators a little freedom of action, may result in a run-away of grabbing territories.

They do not anticipate war at all. Only the craziest kind of a mischance could bring it about. And this because the totalitarians are without the means to fight a serious war, and they know it.

So Mr. Roosevelt has joined the merry throng, not with the hope that he will come out as a savior of peace, but if he jeopardizes American security for several decades to come, but just because it is a nice crowd and he is a "jiner" anyway.

We are the object of as pretty and clever a piece of propaganda work as England ever devised. And among her virtues none shines out so brilliantly as her propaganda. It is built upon an artful understanding of men and nations, their vanity and pride.

She already has Mr. Roosevelt telling Americans how terribly war would disjoin our life even if we never participated in it. This will not sound accurate to those who lived through the last one. The world was at war over 2½ years before we joined in 1917, and up to that time we had never felt a backache nor a pain in the neck.

But how can Chamberlain and Daladier permit Germany to take back some of the rights which plainly belong to her unless they succeed in holding their own people from attack by envisioning war as the stark horror it is, by distributing gas masks, digging trenches in London parks, and hideouts in the country? And how can they eventually protect their countries when they think Hitler and Mussolini have gone far enough unless they have Mr. Roosevelt as the bogey with a big navy and tremendous material forces, to frighten the despots from going further?

As a net result after the war clouds pass, as they will, Mr. Roosevelt may declare to the world, "I did it with my little threat" and his idolators may claim to all and sundry that he saved us from a war which, if it did come, he had already consigned us to.

THE BERGDOLL CASE AGAIN

Mrs. Bergdoll announced at New York upon her arrival the other day that her husband, America's No. 1 war slacker, is about to return from Germany and accept his five year prison sentence for the privilege of living here.

This may be one of the greatest compliments that was ever paid in a left-handed manner to our country. A man with plenty of money who is willing to give up his freedom in Europe for a prison cell in this country for five years in order that he may thereafter live here has made his decision upon plentiful evidence. For Mr. Bergdoll lived in this country about 25 years and has been residing in Germany for the last 20.

It is declared that his citizenship in America has been lost under our laws. If this be true why should he be permitted to return? Must we accept all the flotsam and jetsam and broken pieces of pottery from elsewhere?

Bergdoll was a millionaire. He and his family had made a great fortune in this country. But he was of the opinion that he should always get and never give. He spurned America's conscription law. He would just do as he pleased.

As usual with the administration of justice in this country there was no haste or fever. He was given plenty of chance to go to camp. Opportunities existed for many months to think the thing over and cool down. His attitude was a plain "To hell with you all."

His purpose in now returning is obviously a mixture of desired comfort for his aging years and obtaining the safety, opportunity and protection of America for his children, all of whom were born in Germany where he was also married.

But if the right to exclude Bergdoll exists under our law, as claimed, the enforcement of that right is the proper way to meet the problem of his kind. Putting him in prison for five years would perhaps satisfy the penal code but excluding him from the country would do America more good.

And when Hitler wants Bergdoll's sons for the firing line their disobedience will not be treated as patiently as America treated their father's.

LEWIS OF ILLINOIS

No one in the senate perhaps was more clearly entitled to be designated a colorful character than Senator Lewis of Illinois who has just passed on.

And few ever earned their spurs by closer adherence to the traditional American prescription of work and study than he.

No one fed him honey out of a golden spoon. No one carried him around upon a feather pillow. He obtained none of those fantastic ideas of life that are so often part and parcel of men who accept what is done for them by others, sometimes with little thanks and too often with no appreciation at all.

A day laborer, a stavedore on the Seattle waterfront, a lawyer in Chicago, a member of the House, a senator for 15 years, all sum up to a life of worth and reality. But a fuller understanding is obtained by closer study of this man's legislative convictions. For they were sound and yet liberal. They were practical and yet progressive.

And Lewis never stooped to mud or abuse, never. He was a gallant man always. Some made the mistake of thinking he was a bit of a fop or dandy because he was exceedingly careful about his personal appearance. But those who became acquainted with him learned he was all man. In his early days he liked to talk to the roughest crowds. Brawling longshoremen at Seattle or a troop of stockyard pig stickers in Chicago were his favorites. And, somehow, the rougher men were the quicker to recognize the real gold in him. And when they saw the worth of the man, his carefully kept whiskers, his ornately colored ties and his bright-lined waistcoats became ornaments of merit instead of badges of foppiness.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—The dean of a college in Pennsylvania has asked me to answer a few questions on the theory that the answers might be interesting to other people. I'm not so sure, but I'm game.

Q. "Who, in your opinion, is the most pleasing person you ever met?"

A. I don't remember. Nearly everyone is interesting, few are entirely pleasing.

Q. "Who is your favorite actor?"

A. George M. Cohan is the greatest actor in the world. Period. Paragraph.

Q. "Do you believe in Hell?"

A. I believe in Hell. Everyone does in some degree, and everyone pictures a different kind, I suppose. I am not overly inclined to worry about it, if that is what you mean. I believe man should live according to his light. Let him live with his fellow man decently, considerably

MY YESTERDAY
To a West 45th Street Italian restaurant to satisfy an urge for scallopine à la Marsala and noodles, after which, sluggish and paunch-heavy, I wandered over to hear Jack Teagarden's band debut at Roseland. Went then, shortly before midnight, to the Cotton Club for the premiere of the new Bill Robinson-Cab Calloway show—a honey. Much amused by the tale Henry Youngman, the comic, told. It seems a beggar asked him for a penny, and Henry, surprised, asked why the man wanted such a trivial sum. The beggar replied: "I haven't eaten in two weeks, and I'm curious to see if I've lost any weight."

and honestly. If he does that, Hell will take care of itself.

Q. "What, in your opinion, would happen if all the people in the country became honest for one year?"

A. The speculation, sir, is preposterous. I wonder what would happen if one person became completely honest with himself for one year!

Q. "Do you think District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey gloated over his victory when a jury convicted Jimmy Hines?"

A. No.

The death of Mrs. William Lyons Phelps, wife of Yale's famous professor, ended a fine companionship. Well mated in their love and enthusiasm for literature, they gained happy hours as well as learning from their books. Together they were chain readers of lighter literature. They would sit in their northern Michigan summer home reading mystery books, Dr. Phelps reading a page or chapter, then tearing it out and passing it to his wife. In this way they followed the story together. At intervals they would pause and discuss the book as far as they had read, each offering an opinion as to "who did it."

Deaf to the some time fears of other developers, the Rockefellerers go merrily along with their Center construction. With steel work climbing fast on the new building between 49th and 48th Streets on Rockefeller Plaza, plans already are complete for still another structure. This will be a 14-story building to fit into the Rockefeller Center development on Sixth Avenue, between 48th and 49th Streets, and work will begin this summer.

Easter found the Sunken Plaza of Rockefeller Center bursting with blooms. This year's color scheme was blue and yellow—masses of golden forsythias rimming the Plaza, with two thousand blue hyacinth plants lining the granite walls in front of the Japanese style hedges on the sides. Along the Channel leading to the Plaza were yellow primroses, more blue hyacinths and tall yellow mimosaes, with a sprinkling of pink azaleas and blue hyacinths beneath each of the Norway maples.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, April 12, 1929

The Garvey-Weyenberg Construction company was awarded the contract for paving 10.38 miles of Highway 12 and 13 between Baraboo and Kilbourn at the opening of bids in the Dane county courthouse at Madison Wednesday. The Appleton company submitted a bid of $278,310.

Frank R. Appleton, former chairman of the highway committee and supervisor from the town of Oneida, was elected Outagamie highway commissioner by the highway committee that afternoon by a vote of 4 to 1. One vote was cast for William Rohan, town of Buchanan.

Mrs. R. N. Clapp, 1418 N. Union street, was elected general secretary of the Appleton Women's club at the general meeting Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Clapp succeeded Mrs. Mabel Shannon who held the position the previous three years. Mrs. William Crowe was elected president, succeeding Mrs. S. C. Rosebush.

Friday, April 17, 1914

Fire shortly after noon that day destroyed the horse barns at the fair grounds of the Fox River Valley Fair association. The loss was estimated by Charles Fose between $2,500 and $3,000 with only $950 insurance.

Reports from the county that day were to the effect that farmers had commenced their spring plowing.

The city council placed an order for a combination motor ambulance and patrol to cost $2,600. It was to displace four horses and a wagon.

It was learned that John Strange had purchased the buildings and grounds of the Menasha Woolen Mills and that he was to begin the manufacture of palets and cartons.

Plans were being drawn at the Killen-Strait Manufacturing company for additions which would make it possible to turn out one tractor a day.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

RIGHT PREVAILS

A very little group of stars
Can fill the world with light.
We see them, and forget the dark
Forbidden clouds of night.

A very little group of souls
Who labor earnestly
Can fill a universe with light
That every one can see.

It takes only a slender beam
To guide us through the dark.
The overhanging sky cannot Resist that living spark.

So maybe we should not despair
When proof is sure and strong
That it just takes a little light
To conquer a great wrong.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Candid shots: Jesse Jones, RFC chairman with the mop of hair white as Texas cotton, starts the formal-minded House Interstate Commerce Committee by leaving the witness chair, climbing up on a table where he will be nearer the members on their raised dais, and with his feet resting on a chair alongside, gives them a lecture on what is wrong with the railroads. He further disturbs their equanimity by declining to give a formal statement.

"Go ahead and ask questions," he says. It takes them 15 minutes to get warmed up.

Senator Ellender of Louisiana reverses the procedure. He shuffles himself off the high dais to take a position down among the witnesses as he has called in an investigation of what's wrong—if anything—with the Civil Service.

In the Senate

Senator (Cotton Ed) Smith of South Carolina dumbfounds the Senate by a blanket charge that they are voting relief money "to get votes." Strolls across the chamber during his speech to ask svelte Senator Reynolds of North Carolina to "plumb his heart" to determine whether he did not vote for relief money in order to get votes back home. And the senator from North Carolina grins expansively at the bristly mustached senator from South Carolina but refuses to agree to any such indictment. The Senate chuckles.

In the House:

Rep. Woodrum of Virginia, one of the few truly thunderous orators in the House, pushes aside the loud speaker and lets the members have straight from his lungs a demand for economy. So the members vote $100,000,000 instead of $150,000,000 for additional relief. They applaud him wildly, with the biggest share coming from the Republican side, although Woodrum is a Democrat.

In the Senate Banking Committee:

Diminutive Senator Glass, half hidden at the head of the high table, grows angry out of the side of his mouth at "repudiation of debts" through devaluation of gold, and Senator Taft of Ohio lets his eyeglasses swing from one ear, like a gate on a broken hinge, while he seems to ponder whether that would be a good campaign argument for the presidency during 1940.

Senate Foreign Relation Committee Room:

The committee has just broken up after a session considering neutrality legislation—whether it shall be amended so we may help the European democracies in their desperate effort to surround Hitler. One of the senators, pausing a moment during brain-testing consideration of international law, ships at sea and national front lines, has written himself a reminder on a sheet of paper. It says "Tennis" at the top of the page, and beneath that:

Bread.
Peas
Lamb
And then he left the committee room without the reminder.

CORRECTING AN IMPRESSION

Editor Post-Crescent: I am finding it rather difficult to reconcile Mr. Vogt's admission that he has never voted for Mr. Roosevelt and his New Deal policies, with his apparent willingness to trust our neutrality to the President and his supporters.

I did vote for Mr. Roosevelt the first time he was elected to the Presidency, but, by so doing I did not forever relinquish my right, in a government "by the people and for the people," to take exception to his views.

I don't think the men and women of today who passed through the crisis of 1917-1918, as you and I did, Mr. Vogt, will agree that it was a wise policy to leave our neutrality in the hands of our "responsible" government officials.

That the Communist objective to create dissension among American citizens is succeeding, is only too apparent when, you, an American citizen, can read a plea for Hitlerism into my indictment of unfair discrimination on the part of our administration.

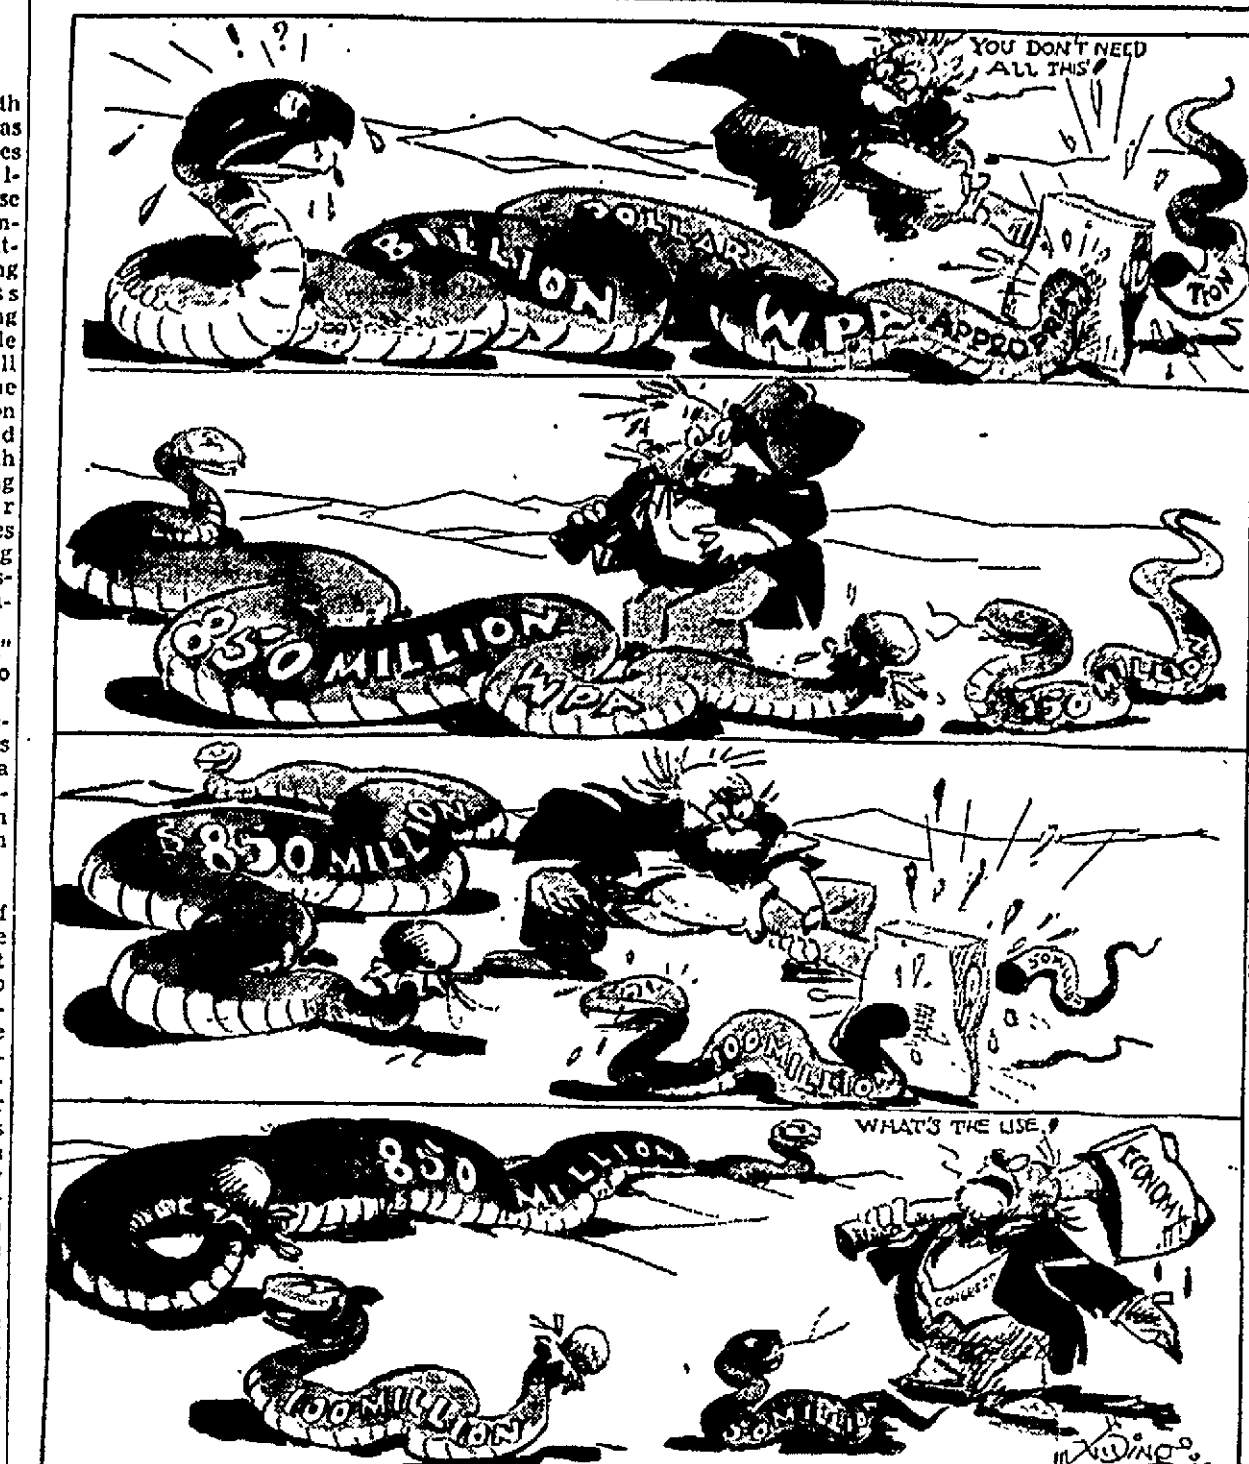

It puzzles me that one who has never agreed with New Deal policies should be such an ardent disciple of Messrs. Pearson and Allen whom Time magazine so fittingly describes as, "the mouthpieces of Tom Corcoran, the New Deal's behind-the-scenes juggler."

You were very indefinite about Germany's unfair trade practices. Mr. Vogt, Communist influence may have biased the judgment of the Geographical Society as it has done in many of our educational institutions and organizations.

I wouldn't be able to read the German papers, but I don't doubt your statement that they were antagonistic toward the United States as far back as 1934, in view of the fact, that, for the past six years (which brings us way back to 1933) a powerful minority in these United States has been permitted to carry on a trade boycott against Germany.

Your letter breathes hate of Stalin, the one of our administration is directed against only those countries that are waging a fight against Communism. Germany and Italy have formed an anti-Communist pact,

CONGRESS CUTS THE APPROPRIATION

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Through the capitol grapevine, always prolific in the beginning of a new administration, comes word that the sweet harmony with which the Republicans began their rule last January is slowly being dissipated.

In many ways the men who constitute the Republican administration at the capitol now are an unusual group to head a government, a group haphazardly selected in the political windfall which descended on the state last fall.

Governor Heil was practically unknown when he entered office. He had to be introduced to legislative leaders party leaders, his own state officers elected on the same ticket which put him in the gubernatorial chair. The landslide swept the customary number of new, inexperienced, and unknown members into the legislature. And at least two of the constitutional state officers were strangers to Republican politics when they took their oaths three months ago.

REACTION

So now the reaction begins. State Treasurer Smith is being criticized by Republican regulars for listening to his Democratic predecessor and political ally, Robert K. Henry. He is also supposed to have had differences with the governor.

Because Smith makes up his own mind without consultation with the party leaders, there is ominous talk of "dumping" him at the next primary.

Governor Heil has cooled toward Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman. Not the least of the reasons, the capitol believes, is the general understanding that the secretary of state wants to return to the governor's office.

The lieutenant governor, Walter S. Goodland, is almost a stranger to the executive, although he is eager and willing to give what help and assistance he can. One result was the vigorous condemnation of the administration from the vice governor last week, a statement which led to widespread gossip of a split between Goodland and Heil.

Then came the explosive argument between the two House Republican floorleaders, Catlin of Appleton and Peterson of Berlin a few days ago. Both were thoroughly aroused, as their acid comments about each other on the floor showed.

Observers now ask whether the brotherliness and harmony with which the administration made such a display on January 1 will have survived at the next election test, next September in the party primaries.

CORRECTION

This column recently characterized Circuit Judge-Elect Joseph R. McCarthy of Shawano as a "youthful Progressive attorney." This column stands corrected. Mr. McCarthy is young, and an attorney.

and, Japan is fighting Communism in China where Russia has already seized over 2,000,000 square miles of territory in the northwestern part. Did Pearson and Allen or the Geographical Society tell you that? Compare this with the 700,000 square miles of Chinese territory occupied by the Japanese. Who is the aggressor nation in China?

If you have read any other purpose into my article than a desire to stress the strict neutrality which George Washington advocated when he said "Treat all nations alike," I would like to suggest that you read it again.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

SANITATION

Some time ago, writes E. A. G., you replied to a query about disinfecting handkerchiefs, towels and other articles of clothing in a house where cribs were prevalent to the effect that boiling the clothes was not necessary as they are sterilized in the process of ironing. Please confirm or enlarge on this for the benefit of other readers.

A good many laymen, and by no means the class of low intelligence only, still regard disease germs as "lurking" about the premises with malicious intent. People who harbor this quaint notion of disease germs make good customers for "powerful germicides, disinfectants or antiseptics and are the most difficult class to teach safe and sound sanitation or asepsis.

The use of germicides in the entire bacterial family are not a menace so long as they merely lurk in nooks or crannies. They can't crawl out after you. They can't fly at you. Don't get so hot and bothered about germs that, in your morbid imagination, "breed" about the premises. Use any amount of the most "powerful" germ killers available and you will be not a mite nor a micrococcus safer than you were before.

The germ of lockjaw (tetanus) is a natural or normal inhabitant of the intestinal tract of domestic animals. Of 500 human fecal specimens examined in California one-fourth were found to contain tetanus spores. In the spore stage or state the tetanus germ may survive under conditions which would certainly destroy most disease germs.

Hence the danger of infection of trifling wounds, punctures, scratches or firewounds or gun powder burns when the skin is even slightly soiled with street dust or grime, garden soil, etc. No known antiseptic or disinfectant or germicide can prevail against tetanus or the risk of tetanus following such wounds. Only an immediate injection of a dose of tetanus antitoxin can be relied upon to prevent this dread complication.

Fomites (plural of fomes, pronounced fom-i-tee) are substances or things which may absorb or retain the virus or germs of disease and possibly be the means of spreading the disease. In the theory and practice of sanitation fifty years ago fomites were pretty important. I remember some tall stories the professors were fond of repeating, stories that were almost hallowed traditions, in which taking an old letter from a trunk in the attic or donning for a costume party an article of clothing left by grandma caused an outbreak of, or, scarlet fever. Scarlet fever was the favorite disease in these yarns—you know, the virus or germ of scarlet fever was as yet unidentified—so how could any one give the yarn a horse-haw-haw?

Only place where modern doctors are particularly concerned about fomites today is in the operating room, but that's another story. The moral I hope to impress on the reader's mind is that plain soap and water cleanliness is the important part of sanitation. Nothing else matters much.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Exercise For Hernia

I was advised by a party that you have a set of exercises for hernia cases. . . (S.S.)

Answer—Exercises done regularly

but he was incorrectly described as a Progressive, as half a dozen or more readers have hastened to inform this department.

From a letter by Nelson R. Demming, chairman of the Waupaca county Democratic committee comes this information: "Mr. McCarthy is a Democrat, has always been a Democrat, and has served as president of the Young Democrats of the 7th congressional district of Wisconsin."

Last fall Mr. McCarthy ran for district attorney of Shawano county on the Democratic ticket.

with one hand carefully supporting the hernial area, will prevent development of hernia and effect permanent cure in some cases. For instructions send stamped envelope bearing your address ("City" or "Local" is not an address) and ask for monograph on Hernia.

Dandelion Greens

Unable to find dandelion greens in local markets, they say "We don't have them and don't know what they are." You mentioned dandelion greens as one of the richest sources of vitamin A. Please tell me where I can get dandelion greens. (W. F. P.)

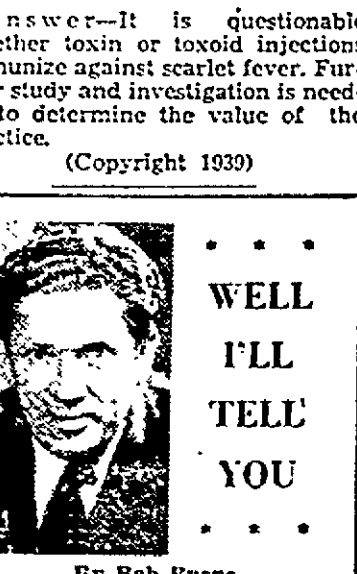

Answer—Sharpen up your kitchen knife, and put on a large apron with no holes in it. With the first persistent rumor of spring salicy forth and find a nice vacant lot. When you see a green weed overpowered by the grass around it, provided roses of coarsely pinnate leaves arise, runcinate with lobes toothed, like a lion, stir it out cleanly with your knife, drop in your apron, and continue till you have an apronful. Then trudge home with your haul, singing Funiculi. Dandelion greens are a good source of vitamin G and vitamin B (B complex), vitamin C, Calcium, Iron, as well as vitamin A. Wash the greens in running water, and serve as you would lettuce or chervil or even (asparagus) or beet greens. Dandelion greens yield twice as many calories as spinach does.

Scarlet Fever Prophylactic

Kindly give your opinion of shots to prevent scarlet fever. (Mrs. A. M.)

Answer—It is questionable whether toxin or toxoid injections immunize against scarlet fever. Further study and investigation is needed to determine the value of the practice.

I was awful clad when they gave the Academy Award this year to that picture, "You Can't Take It With You," 'cause there's a great lesson in it. I believe, like the picture shows, that everyone should have a good time and enjoy themselves while they're alive. 'Course I don't believe a fella should just throw his money away—he should get the most value and pleasure out of it that he can.

My Uncle Hod was like that. Last season when the Van Buren Dramatic Guild put on a comedy they chose Aunt Peachy Sims to play the lead, and although Uncle Hod couldn't really afford it he bought the best seat in the house. Just as the curtain rose a woman wearing one of them new hats that look like a Blue-plate dinner with a choice of two vegetables, sat down in front of him. "Hod couldn't see the stage at all so he leans forward and says to the lady, "Would you please

Neutrality Laws Contain Bar Against Headlong Action

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington—It has become the fashion to deride all neutrality legislation. The dog has been given a bad name, and a kick is inflicted by every passerby. Roosevelt probably would recommend repeal of the existing legislation if there was not so much chance of arousing a backfire from the country. The state department would like to get rid of the law.

But direct proposals to that effect seemed inexpedient, so Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, has proposed a compromise revision which appears to be an improvement over the existing law while retaining many of its desirable features.

For despite the sport around Washington of sneering at neutrality legislation, it contains features which for the time being certainly act as a brake against possible ill-considered and headlong action in event of war in Europe.

If for no other reason, neutrality legislation could well stand on the books because if war broke out it would give congress an opportunity to reopen the situation and judge then what should be done. Nothing in it interferes with our defending ourselves against attack. The legislation only relates to what we shall do if other countries begin fighting, particularly with the object of preventing us from becoming accidentally involved. If we are going to involve ourselves it ought to be by deliberate decision and not by being caught accidentally, through, for instance, loss of American lives on a foreign-flag munition carrier.

The present neutrality act provides principally that in event of war between other countries, the following are automatically forbidden: shipment to belligerents of arms, ammunition and implements of war; financial transactions in bonds or other obligations of belligerents; carrying of arms to belligerents by American vessels; travel by Americans on vessels of belligerents; arming of American merchantmen engaged in trade with belligerents.

President May Forbid Use Of American Ports
Further, the president may, in his discretion, forbid foreign submarines or armed merchant vessels to come into American ports. He may forbid the use of American ports as supply bases for belligerent ships hovering offshore.

In addition the act contains the cash-and-carry provision which permits the president, in his discretion, to proclaim a list of commodities, raw materials and the like—not including actual war implements and ammunition which are covered by the automatic embargo. On such supplementary materials he could place restrictions forbidding them to be shipped to belligerents in American vessels and requiring that title to the goods be transferred out of American hands before shipment.

That provision expires May 1. If no amendments to the act are passed

House Bloc Members Want at Least $40,000,000 Additional Fund

Washington—(AP)—The house dairy bloc decided Thursday to endeavor to persuade the senate to add at least $40,000,000 to the agriculture department appropriation bill to remove surplus dairy products from the market.

It also decided to press the government relief agencies to increase allotment of butter to relief clients to remove the 65,000,000 pounds of the product now held by the surplus commodities corporation.

Representative Knutson (R-Minn.), chairman of the bloc, instructed each member to see the senators from his state and impress upon them the necessity for immediate action by the senate to relieve the dairy situation.

"We will be in peak production of dairy products in another six weeks," Knutson said, "and must have more money to take surplus products off the market to prevent prices dropping to a ruinously low level."

Members of the bloc said under the present allotment of 30 per cent of customs receipts for purchase of all surplus commodities, only about $12,000,000 would be available for dairymen after the present surplus was taken care of.

"If we can get the relief agencies to distribute more butter," said Representative Hull (P-Wis.) "we can get rid of our surplus in two weeks."

Large Utility Reveals Plans to Recapitalize

Chicago—(AP)—Central and South West Utilities company, largest unit in the middle west corporation network, was drawing plans Thursday for recapitalization, President Gail Belden revealed in a report to stockholders.

Belden said the proposed recapitalization would eliminate dividend arrears and provide a simple corporate structure. No definite plan has been approved yet by the directors or the securities and exchange commission.

The company reported consolidated net profit of $2,916,879 for 1938, compared with $2,718,343 for 1937.

Bill to Outlaw Trading Stamps Causes Furore

Legislators Face Barrage Of Pressure; Party Lines Broken

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison -- Probably few other measures in the present legislature will put members of the house and senate under greater duress than the currently debated proposal to ban department store trading stamps.

Legislators are being swamped with letters, petitions, telegrams and other communications from constituents for and against the bill, introduced by Senator Cornelius Young of Milwaukee, Democrat.

Although the measure is the product of rivalry between a trio of Milwaukee department stores, two of which issue the stamps, and one of which does not, stores in other cities in Wisconsin which issue the certificates in lieu of cash discounts have also begun a barrage of pressure against the bill. Merchants who do not issue the stamps have not been slow to jump into the fray either.

Party Lines Broken

No other bill in the present session of the legislature, observers declare, has produced more intensive or expensive lobbying. The measure has completely broken up party lines, and has already created what appears to be a rift between the two Republican floor-leaders in the assembly, Mark Catlin of Appleton, and Reuben Peterson of Berlin. Catlin is against the bill which would outlaw the stamps, on the ground that the consumer values the discount. Peterson supports the bill.

Illustrative of the pressure which members of the assembly were subjected to this week is the experience of two Brown county representatives, William J. Sweeney and Harold A. Lytle. Together they have received more than 1,000 letters for and against the bill, scores of telegrams and stacks of petitions with thousands of names. "Figure out how much that would cost me if I wanted to answer all of them," said Sweeney, "and print it. They'll know then why they haven't heard from me."

The National Council of Women in Ireland is urging appointment of a force of police women for large cities of the country.

IN PICTURE SHOWING AT RIO

One of the most star-studded casts of recent years and a witty story tailored to fit Claudette Colbert's unique personality combine to make an outstanding piece of screen comedy out of "Midnight," the Colbert-Don Ameche starrer, which starts today at the Rio Theater.

A list of the stars in "Midnight" reads like several pages torn from a who's who of Hollywood: In addition to Miss Colbert and Ameche, now started together for the first time, the picture presents John Barrymore, Francis Lederer, Mary Astor, Hedda Hopper and Rex O'Malley. There is also Elaine Barrie, the vivacious New York schoolgirl who won the heart and hand of the great Barrymore, now making her motion picture debut.

The added feature on the same program is "The Adventures of Jane Arden," with Rosella Towne and William Gargan in the leading roles. The story is based on the famous radio and comic strip of the same title.

Announcement was made recently of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Carter, above, daughter of Arthur Carter, Clintonville, to Franklin Haven, son of Mrs. Stella Haven, Clintonville. She is shown here in costume for a monodrama, "Queen Victoria," which she gave for the Clintonville Woman's club. She studied last year at the Sherwood School of Music and Dramatics, Chicago. Her fiancé teaches at the Dale public school, Oshkosh.

Lutheran Ladies Aid Plans Mother, Daughter Banquet

Plans for several coming events including a mother and daughter banquet Thursday, April 27, at which Mrs. L. F. Gast, Green Bay, will be speaker, and India lace day May 14 were made at the meeting of Ladies Aid and Missionary society of First English Lutheran church Thursday night at the parish hall. Reservations will be open to 200 persons for the banquet.

Four delegates will be appointed soon to attend a group meeting, the spring conference of the central group, at Ephraim May 24.

Junior Mission band sang two selections at the meeting and Mrs. Gordon Bubolz gave the topic on "Resurrection." The serving committee included Mrs. Carl Hansen, Mrs. John Heins, Mrs. Harold Helbing, Mrs. C. H. Huesemann, Mrs. Everett Johnson, Mrs. Walter Koester, Mrs. Adelbert Miller and Mrs. Ernestine Sonntag.

The women will serve the Brotherhood banquet at the convention of the Fox river valley association May 7. The anniversary dinner and supper will be May 23.

The play, "Brothers," which M. S. M. club of First Methodist church presented several weeks ago at the church and which was scheduled to be repeated recently but called off because of illness, will be given at 7:30 Sunday night in the little theater of the church. The public is invited to attend. Mrs. Harry C. Culver is the director. The play will be given at Neenah next month.

Sunday school teachers of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church will meet at 7:30 this evening at the home of the Misses Violet and Helen Filz, 903 W. Elsie street.

Male Chorus to Present Fifth Annual Concert

APPLETON MacDowell Male chorus, which will give its fifth annual concert at 8:15 next Tuesday night at Lawrence Memorial chapel, is a non-sectarian organization which took its name from Edward MacDowell, famous American composer. It was formed with the idea of giving men who enjoyed singing an opportunity to do so and also to build up a civic organization which would be a credit to the community.

The chorus' first concert was given before a near-capacity house, and every year since then the chapel has been filled. Last year the house was sold out seven weeks before the concert, and this year the chapel's capacity is again sold for the concert.

Approximately 6,000 persons heard the chorus last year in various appearances. Since its organization the chorus has appeared in Green Bay, Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Milwaukee and Indianapolis, Ind., at the latter city representing Wisconsin at the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music clubs.

Officers of the chorus are O. R. Tank, president; Armin Albrecht, vice president; Charles Huesemann, Jr., secretary; Arno Seifert, treasurer; John S. Wells, George McElroy and E. H. Bayley, directors; Leonard Krueger and Maurice Lewis, librarians; E. John Goodrich, business manager; A. H. Falk, publicity manager.

Robert Long, tenor with the Chicago Opera company, will be guest soloist at the concert Tuesday night. Persons holding associate membership tickets may have them reserved at Bellini's drug store.

Guardianship Fight Over Young Singer Will Go Into Court

DETROIT—A 13-year-old Detroit girl being groomed as a cinema songbird will be the center of a guardianship fight in probate court here June 5.

The date was set by Judge Patrick H. O'Brien yesterday for a hearing on the suit of George W. Stillwater, steelworker in an automobile plant, seeking appointment as guardian of his daughter, Beverly Jane.

The girl is in Hollywood with an aunt, Mrs. Anna Catherine Stillwater, appointed her guardian by a California court last October. Her screen name is Linda Ware. She sang on a Detroit radio station children's program before going to the coast.

Producer Charles Rogers testified at the Hollywood guardianship hearing that he wanted to place Beverly under contract for $150 weekly, with the prospect of paying her $1,200 a week within seven years. The court ordered half of her earnings kept in trust.

Stillwater asks that the California ruling be set aside, that he be appointed guardian and that the Detroit court administer a trust fund for his daughter.

Beverly's mother died nine years ago.

Capacity Crowd At Waupaca Show

Conservation League Sponsors Sportsmen's Event in Armory

Waupaca—The Waupaca Memorial armory was packed to capacity at the first indoor sportsman's show ever sponsored by the conservation league and in addition to a success as an entertainment more than $500 was cleared by the league.

High light of the program was a shooting exhibition by Colonel and Mrs. "Bill" Johnson, both of whom make "impossible" shots with rifle, revolver, pistol and shotgun, look easy.

Sid Gordon, C. C. division of the Wisconsin Conservation Commission, gave a 15-minute lecture on fly casting, demonstrating his remarks. In addition Bert Salisbury, magician, occupied a large part of the program.

Four Birthday Anniversaries Celebrated at Supper Party

Thirty-two relatives gathered Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Verbrick, S. Oneida street, for a covered dish supper and card party in honor of four members of the family whose birthday anniversaries come in April. The guests of honor were Mr. Verbrick and Mrs. William McGinnis, Appleton, John Aylward, Neenah, and F. B. Peterson, Menasha. After the supper the women played bridge and the men, skat. Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. William O'Neil, Mrs. John Aylward, Neenah, and Mrs. Frank Biselx, Kaukauna.

Mrs. F. H. Richmond, 745 E. Alton street, is entertaining this afternoon and evening at her home in honor of the Misses Amelia and Alice McKay, former residents of Appleton. The two women have been away from Appleton for over 30 years and are now making their home on a ranch in New Mexico. Their return to Appleton was largely for business reasons, for they plan to plat and sell their large farm lands, which extend from the new high school to Butte des Morts Golf club.

Mrs. Earl Knuth, formerly Miss Helen Plumb who was married recently and is moving to New London to make her home, was entertained at a farewell party last night given by Mrs. Gerhard Harder, 505 W. Parkway boulevard. Fourteen guests were present and Chinese checkers provided entertainment, prizes going to Miss Erna Nagel, Kaukauna, and Miss Anna Staerkel, Oshkosh. A gift was presented to Mrs. Knuth who formerly was employed at Aid Association for Lutherans.

Mrs. Elizabeth Riedl and Mrs. Henry Wolter won the schafskopf prizes and Mrs. Elizabeth Neugebauer and Mrs. Ernest Albrecht the plump sack awards at the first of a series of card parties sponsored by Ladies Aid society of St. Joseph's church Thursday afternoon at the parish hall. Seven tables were in play.

One hundred eighty-five young people of Appleton and vicinity attended the last of a series of roller skating parties sponsored by Christian Endeavor societies of Evangelical churches from Appleton, Greenville, Center, Neenah, Forest Junction, Brillion, Bonduel, Cicero and Seymour, last night at the armory. The committee in charge included Howard Polzin.

Confront Wallace With Requests to Stabilize Butter

National Organization Asks Resumption of Purchasing Program

Chicago—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today had for consideration from the National Cooperative Milk Producers association a request to "immediately resume his abandoned program of stabilizing butter prices at some reasonable level."

The association, which claims a membership of 350,000 farmers in 41 states and was represented at an emergency meeting yesterday by delegates from 62 affiliated organizations, urged that the federal government appropriate funds to purchase surplus dairy products as a means of stabilizing prices.

The resolution directed to government officials said that if sufficient funds were not available during the present fiscal year which extends beyond the peak of summer production, "We urge Secretary Wallace to request such funds from the budget bureau and we pledge him our assistance to secure the necessary appropriations. It must be remembered that the key to all prices of dairy products is butter, just as butter reflects most accurately the surplus of dairy products."

The resolution advocated that the Dairy Products Marketing association, a stabilization corporation set up last June to remove surplus butter from the market, "be immediately expanded so that it may properly find some export outlets for butter and other dairy products."

Federal officials also were urged "to make subsidies available for the exportation of butter," while congress was asked "to support the amendment to the pending appropriations bill for the department of agriculture . . . providing for an additional $150,000,000 to be made available for the removal of all agricultural surpluses and their disposal through relief and through foreign markets or otherwise."

"We endorse and favor the continuance of the federal program of controlling the interstate marketing of milk in those milk sheds where the producers by referendum requested it," the resolution continued.

Heart Ailment or Drowning Cause of Mrs. Sigl's Death

Seymour Woman Collapsed in Ditch While Walking Along Road

The death of Mrs. Joseph Sigl, 46, Seymour, whose body was found in a ditch on Highway 55 2 1/2 miles north of Seymour early yesterday morning, was caused either by a heart ailment or drowning, an autopsy performed yesterday afternoon showed.

The autopsy disclosed she suffered from failure of the right side of her heart and water was found in her mouth and nose. A blood test also showed water in her blood. District Attorney Raymond P. Dohr said that if drowning after the attack was not the cause of her death the heart ailment was. The autopsy findings will be presented at an inquest.

Mrs. Sigl's body was found face down in several inches of water by a truck driver about 5 o'clock Thursday morning. She was last seen walking along the left side of the highway shortly before 10 o'clock Wednesday night.

A slight abrasion on one of her knees probably was caused when she fell, the district attorney said today. Mrs. Sigl's purse was found about a mile from where her body lay, and Dohr said she probably rested and dropped it at this point before walking on to where she collapsed.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 Monday morning at the St. John's Catholic church. Burial will be in the parish cemetery.

Wet Weather to Continue, Report

Showers and Snow Forecast for State Saturday; 41 Here Today

Dark, low-hanging clouds and periodic rain today's weather menu, probably will be offered again tomorrow, the weatherman said in his daily forecast.

There will be rain in the southern and eastern sections of the state, snow is probable in the north-west, and cloudiness will be general, the Milwaukee bureau promised.

Despite the absence of the sun, today's temperature was higher than the average the last week, reading 41 degrees at noon today. For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 50 and the lowest 33, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. Rain measured .11 of an inch.

Phoenix, Ariz., turned in the nation's high reading yesterday, 88 degrees. Modena, Wis., was the coldest spot, with 22 degrees.

Recommend Fox River Harbor Improvements

A Green Bay harbor and Fox river improvement project costing $56,000 was one of 60 improvement projects estimated to cost $69,659,800 recommended today for authorization by the house rivers and harbors committee at Washington, according to the Associated Press. The largest project in the bill was improvement of the Illinois waterway at a cost of $25,900,000.

The bill introduced today makes no appropriation. If the projects are authorized, the money necessary for carrying them out must be obtained by appropriation next year or thereafter.

Michael Garvey, 87, Pioneer of Outagamie County, Dies at Home

Michael Garvey, 87, retired lumberman, railroad man, and farmer, died last Wednesday afternoon at his home on 493 S. Memorial Drive. He was one of Outagamie county's oldest residents.

He lived in Appleton since 1912, coming here from the town of Freedom after his retirement. He was born in Little Chute Nov. 6, 1852. His parents moved to the town of Freedom, where he attended school. He made the youthful head of the Garvey Lumber and Lumber company, a firm established to handle wood and lumber from lands being cleared by farmers.

Mr. Garvey was next employed by the Chicago and North Western Railway company as a foreman and supervisor, working for the company for 10 years. One of the major projects completed under his supervision was the grading of the North-

FIRE AT REHFELDT FARM LEAVES BARN IN RUINS
Ruins of the large barn at the Harold Rehfeldt farm, route 2, Appleton, destroyed by fire last night, are shown above. The fire, of unknown origin, was discovered shortly before 10 o'clock last night by members of the Rehfeldt family. The Grand Chute fire department and neighbors fought the blaze for about three hours. The flames, fanned by a south wind, threatened the house for a time. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Roosevelt Says Washington Would Have Been Justified In Turning Down Presidency

Mount Vernon, Va.—(AP)—President Roosevelt stood on the porch of historic Mount Vernon today and voiced the gratitude of "tens of millions of Americans" that 150 years ago George Washington bowed to the demand that he become the first president.

It was April 14, 1789, that Charles Thomson, secretary of the Continental congress, rode into Mount Vernon with an official notification of Washington's election by the congress.

Washington "rightly" must have felt, Mr. Roosevelt declared, that he was entitled to a rest, that "he had rounded out his contribution to the public weal."

The soldier-patriot would have refused the call to the presidency, Mr. Roosevelt said he had always believed, had it not come "in a time of real crisis" for the republic.

Two Get Permits To Build Houses

Theodore Utschig, Edward Campshire to Erect Residences

Theodore Utschig, 400 W. Parkway boulevard, today was given a permit by the city building inspector to erect a new residence at 1827 Alvin street. Cost of the home, which will be of frame construction, is estimated at $6,000. It will be 32 feet wide and 40 feet long with a garage 12 by 21 feet.

Edward Campshire 1825 N. Appleton street, received a permit to build a home at 1730 Bouten street. The house will be built of frame materials and brick and will contain five rooms. Cost is estimated at $4,800. It will be 26 feet, 10 inches long and 24 feet, 10 inches wide. The garage will be 12 by 20 feet.

Woman Given Divorce And Custody of Child

Florence Del Val, 23, 4214 Broad street, Menasha, was granted a divorce from Edward Del Val, 26, Waupun, by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment. The plaintiff was granted custody of a minor child and $20 a month for the child's support. The couple married at Menasha in 1934 and separated in February of 1937.

FINED FOR DRUNKENNESS

George Muench, 1623 S. Oneida street, pleaded guilty of drunkenness and was fined $10 and costs with an alternative of 20 days in the county detention camp by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court this morning. Muench, who was arrested by city police, paid the fine.

Orthopedic Field Clinic to be Held At Morgan School

Medical Society, State Department are Joint Sponsors

An orthopedic field clinic under the joint auspices of the Outagamie County Medical society and the crippled children's division of the state department of public instruction will be held at the Morgan school Saturday.

The medical society has invited Dr. Robert P. Montgomery and Dr. Herman C. Schumm, Milwaukee orthopedists, to conduct examinations. The clinic will serve children in Outagamie and neighboring counties.

The Outagamie county unit of the Wisconsin Association for the Disabled will assist in the clinic. Mrs. Louis Michelm is chairman of the arrangements committee and is planning to have workers at the clinic to assist.

Miss Lois Mitchell, field worker for the crippled children division, will be in Appleton and vicinity to interview parents and family physicians regarding clinic attendance of children. On the clinic day Miss Mitchell and other staff to members of the division will be at the clinic to take histories and to interview parents. A member of the staff of the rehabilitation division, state board of vocational and adult education, also will be at the clinic to interview older boys and girls regarding training and employment.

DEATHS

MRS. HENRY ROSENTHAL

Mrs. Henry Rosenthal, 69, route 1, Clintonville, died unexpectedly yesterday afternoon after she collapsed at about 2 o'clock on Modoc street, Clintonville, while on the way to a dressmaker's establishment. She was found at a hospital, where she died at about 6 o'clock last evening. Death was the result of a hemorrhage.

Born May 19, 1870, in Germany, she came to the United States when she was a child and has been a resident in the vicinity of Clintonville nearly all her life. She was a member of St. Martin Lutheran church, Clintonville.

A dinner and roundtable discussion will be held in the evening at the Conway hotel.

Seeks Heavy Tax On Military Toys

Rhinclander Legislator Calls Them Propaganda Instruments

Madison—(AP)—Henry J. Berquist (Prog) Rhinclander, told an assembly committee yesterday that military toys, which he proposes to tax, are "propaganda instruments of war" from which children should be shielded.

"Educators hold that the things a child learns in the first seven years of his life influence his trend of thinking throughout the rest of his life," Berquist said.

"There are too many of these military toys in circulation and this bill of mine will keep many of them from creeping into the hands of unsuspecting children."

The bill taxes the manufacture and sale of toys in amounts ranging from $5 to $500. It affects guns, cannons, machine guns, pistols, battleships, airplanes, tanks and soldiers.

"How about 'G-man' dolls and things like that?" one committee member asked.

"This would include anything described as being for the purpose of self-destruction," Berquist said.

"There are plenty of men willing to fight to save the country," he added. "We don't have to put popguns in the hands of the young."

Mrs. Charles A. Rosa, of Madison, representing the Women's League for Peace and Freedom, endorsed the bill. No others spoke.

Burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery, Green Bay. The body will be at the funeral home from Saturday noon to the hour of services.

Born in Milwaukee, Mrs. Gilgrece lived in Appleton the last 10 years. Survivors are the husband; three brothers, Louis Sauney, Milwaukee; William, Gillett; George, Green Bay; three sisters, Mrs. Rudolph Dunks, Harlow, Town, Mont.; Mrs. Carl All, Mrs. Charles Ludwig, Manitowish.

Tension on Rise As Pledges Meet Angry Reception

their independence threatened, followed the British prime minister's speech by several hours.

Some diplomats in Rome interpreted the Italian premier's words as another step toward a head-on clash between the totalitarian powers and the anti-aggression bloc forming under leadership of the two western European democracies.

Informed quarters it was expected Britain would reinforce her pledges to stop Hitler and Mussolini on a line running along the Polish, Rumanian and Greek borders from the Baltic to the Black sea and the Aegean, with moves to include Turkey in her string of alliances.

Wait Address
But no official announcement was expected before Chamberlain addressed parliament again April 18.

Many observers in Britain felt the government might change its policy of "no concession."

Although German official quarters said their fleet movement long had been planned and that the British and French governments had been informed, it was quickly noted here that the German fleet "somewhere off Spain" would be in a position to menace Anglo-French communications lines through the straits of Gibraltar and in the South Atlantic.

MAKE PROGRESS

London—(AP)—British efforts to bring Soviet Russia into a grand alliance against Nazi-Fascist expansion were reliably reported to have made good progress today after a long conference between Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky.

This was the second development in Britain's efforts to put sharper teeth in her policy with France for European collective security against aggression.

The first, reliable reports said, was British pressure for military staff talks among Polish, Rumanian, Greek, French and British experts.

Maisky, seemingly pleased by the flat British-French guarantee yesterday to help Rumania defend her independence, asked for the conference with Lord Halifax.

After he left, a British spokesman said: "There is no reason to believe that Russia may not join the alliance within the next few days."

CREATE IMPRESSION

Budapest, Hungary.—(AP)—British and French guarantees of the independence of Rumania and Greece have created a profound impression in the Balkans.

Positive assurances from the western democracies convinced many Balkan statesmen that at last a force has arisen to oppose the German "Drang Nach Osten" (March to the east) which seemed to be sweeping to the Black sea, and a possible fascist expansion through the lower Balkans.

Officially, no one in the Balkans was making any comment to this effect. But it appeared to careful observers that the British and French declarations were welcomed by Rumania and Greece, and by a third state which was not even mentioned in the guarantee declarations—Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia regards Rumania as her most intimate ally in the Balkans. Not so favorably impressed were Hungary and Bulgaria.

Two days ago Hungary withdrew from the league of nations with gestures indicating she was emphasizing her loyalty to the Rome-Berlin axis with which she recently associated in the anti-comintern pact.

Bulgaria has not yet accepted membership in the Balkan pact—which includes Rumania, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey—because she fears to do so would compromise her unfortified demands upon Rumania for return of territory lost in the world war.

CABINET APPROVES

Rome —(AP)—The Italian cabinet today formally approved King Vittorio Emanuele's acceptance of the crown of Albania.

Provision was made for appointment of a lieutenant-general—perhaps Premier Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano—as foreign minister at Tirana. Ciano, who is foreign minister, also is a lieutenant-general in the Fascist militia.

If Ciano were named victory it was reported the Italian ambassador to London, Count Dino Grandi, would succeed Ciano in the foreign ministry, a portfolio Grandi formerly held.

Ciano has made two flying trips to Albania since that little mountain

EXPAND FOREIGN LEGION

Paris —(AP)—France, preparing against the chance that the new collective security in Europe may not avert war, today started taking Spanish republican fighting men from concentration camps into the famed French foreign legion.

Only 300 of the 220,000 warrior refugees were authorized to serve in the legion out of the tens of thousands who applied but officials termed them "the first contingent."

The enlistment move was interpreted in many quarters as a warning that if Italy did not take her troops out of Spain, France would arm masses of the veteran Spanish militiamen.

Having guaranteed protection to Poland, Rumania and Greece against any aggression—a move construed as the strongest warning yet to the Rome-Berlin axis—France made quiet preparations for the worst.

CALL MORE TROOPS

Warsaw—(AP)—Poland called additional men to military service today, expanding an army of 1,000,000 regulars and reservists already under arms, as reports were received of large concentrations of German troops at three places on the frontier.

The war ministry announced youths of 18, 19 and 20 years old who previously had not been in the conscript classes were being recruited.

The reports of German troop movements said large forces were gathered at Lauenburg, facing the Polish port of Gdynia, but a few miles from the free city of Danzig in the Polish corridor; at Schneidemuhl, opposite the Polish town of Bydgoszcz on the Vistula river in the corridor, and in Silesia, opposite Czesochowa.

There were reports that Adolf Hitler had made known through his representatives in Berlin that he would like to enter Danzig on his birthday anniversary April 20.

Frankenstein Held On Assault Charge

Flint, Mich.—(AP)—Richard T. Frankenstein, a leader of the C.I.O.-affiliated United Automobile Workers, was bound to court today on a charge of felonious assault, after an examination in municipal court. Bond of $300 was continued.

William Kupres, a supporter of Homer Martin's independent U.A.W.A., accused Frankenstein of threatening him with a pistol during a disturbance at a U.A.W.A. meeting last February.

Examination of Jerry Oldred, secretary-treasurer of the independent U.A.W.A., on a similar charge in connection with an altercation outside an automobile plant here, was adjourned one week.

Milwaukee Is Host To Y.W.C.A. Leaders

Milwaukee—(AP)—Y. W. C. A. leaders from 11 states met here today for the annual three-day regional conference.

States represented were Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Nebraska, Minnesota, Missouri, North and South Dakota.

Among speakers scheduled to address the conference were Dr. Charles Gilkey of the University of Chicago; Miss Emma Brith, general secretary of the national Y. W. C. A., and Miss Margaret Williamson, of the national Y. W. C. A. laboratory division.

Bill Provides for New State Motor Vehicle Division

be appointed by the governor, six of whom would be members of the administrative bodies to be abolished.

John Callahan, superintendent of public instruction of an elective official under the constitution, would be known as "commissioner of education" to carry out the policies of the board.

The department of education would have three divisions; one for higher education; one for general education below the college level; and one for vocational and adult education.

Under a resolution previously adopted a deadline was established for midnight Friday on introduction of new proposals except by the joint finance committee, while the finance committee will act as sponsor for important legislation still to come, individual legislators must get their bills under the wire today.

The administration proposes to unite under one head the enforcement of all laws and regulations pertaining to automobiles and trucks over which five agencies now have varying degrees of control.

With a director in charge, the motor vehicle division would take over issuance of auto plates and drivers licenses from the secretary of state, enforcement work of the public service commission, inspection, accident reporting and safety functions of the highway commission, testing station activities of the industrial department and regulatory duties of the department of public instruction with regard to school buses.

Would Abolish Commission
A bill to abolish the three man public service commission was introduced in the senate yesterday. The public service body and the tax and industrial commissions have exercised quasi-judicial functions in their respective fields.

If the governor's program is enacted a new three man board of review would be set up to pass upon decisions of department directors and appeals from the board's findings could be taken direct to the supreme court.

Another Consolidation
Another consolidation proposal was introduced in the assembly yesterday to create one big promotional department to advertise agricultural products, recreational attractions and industrial advantages of the state.

The proposed revamping of governmental functions would provide the governor with opportunity to appoint numerous administrative heads of his own choosing, with confirmation by the senate. There also would be many deputy directorships or division appointments to be filled.

The chief executive is expected soon to name the head of the research division which, under his direct control, will set up an accounting system and make a study of all departments. The division would have an undetermined number of employees.

Spokesmen for the minority Progressive bloc, which has been operationally suspicious of administration plans, objected to a provision in the public service commission proposal that present employees be retained for 30 days, asserting there would be nothing to prevent wholesale removals after that time.

A minority attack upon the program has been anticipated.

Movie Land Its People and Products

Lewis Stone, veteran screen actor, has gained even added popularity as the head of the Hardy Family in the famous series. The latest Hardy Family production is "The Hardys Ride High".

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—There are two ill-sorted items in the news of the day. Story Number One is the list of salaries paid to the executives of Hollywood—amounts ranging from a very infrequent minimum of $25,000 to well over $1,000,000 a year. Story Number Two is a trade paper squib announcing that Jimmy Roosevelt, who started his career just four months ago as vice-president of a major company, will soon take his place as an associate producer in charge of actual picture-making.

Fidler

My point is this: In the eyes of the thinking public—and certainly from the pained viewpoint of the movie companies stockholders—the only possible justification for those enormous salaries paid to picture producers is the recipients' well-rounded knowledge of a very intricate, very specialized, business. Most of us are willing to concede that a man whose native talent and practical experience enable him to wisely boss a million dollar production is worth big money. But I, for one, am not credulous enough to believe that any man can step abruptly from selling insurance to fronting for a studio, and acquire that specialized knowledge in four short months.

If Hollywood is to continue extracting boom time admission fees from a depression-battered public, it needs the confidence of that public. Theater-goers should be given no cause to suspect that they are paying high prices for tickets, because Hollywood pays high wages for a name, political connections—or anything excepting honest ability to do the job in hand. Presumably, Mr. Roosevelt will be a producer in name, rather than in fact. But, even so, most Americans still like to see the credit—and the cash—go to the man who really does the work.

Babson Says Dixie Can Lead Country Into Boom Period

Economist Is Optimistic Over Possibilities of Southern Industry

BY ROGER BABSON

Savannah, Ga.—After a winter spent in the south it is hard to be pessimistic on this section even though cotton is selling for only 8 cents a pound! Far from being Economic Problem No. 1, I think the south is Possibility No. One of the United States. Eliminate freight rate differentials, speed up the diversification of the farms, utilize the water-power developments, and Dixie can lift the United States into a period of business prosperity!

The south is making huge progress each year. The fastest-growing states in the union are nearly all in the south. Texas, Florida, Louisiana, the Carolinas are boosting their populations about three times as fast as the north. Literally hundreds of communities that were unheard of 10 years ago are thriving towns today. Every one of the chief cities in the United States whose populations have doubled since 1920 is below the Mason and Dixon line!

Has One-Quarter Of Industry
The story of the south's industrial growth is even more sensational. More than half the new factory development of the entire country in recent years has been down here! Today, Dixie has over 23 per cent of the manufacturing establishments of the United States! And they keep mushrooming up everywhere. Northern concerns continue to flow toward the gulf, while entirely new industries are springing up all across the south. Reasonable labor costs, savings in fuel, nearness to raw materials, cheap power, low taxes, and water transportation are among the big sales points in the south's spectacular growth.

Latest New Industry Is Newsprint
The first mill is under construction in Texas. It may be the forerunner of a southward trek of northern and Canadian newsprint mills. Slush is the raw material. It grows three times as fast as northern spruce. Other branches of the paper industry—particularly kraft—are going strong in Dixie. The southern chemical business is growing by leaps and bounds. Textile mills continue to multiply. Seventy per cent of our rayon output comes from the south. The center of the booming petroleum business is in the south-west.

Steel Industry To Grow
The end of the so-called "basing-point" price system for steel should help all southern industry. Once it was just as cheap to buy a ton of Pittsburgh-made steel delivered at Birmingham as it was to buy a ton of Birmingham-made steel. Now, the ton of southern steel is cheaper. Hence, foundries, forges, stamping mills, and other metal fabricators that have concentrated around northern steel towns will find it advantageous to have branch factories near the southern steel industry. All winter, Birmingham steel mills were much busier than those in the north.

Present freight rates are unfair to the South. Smash up these rates and the products of southern factories and farms can be laid down at northern doors at a real saving to consumers. If we believe in a gradual lowering of world trade barriers, we ought to eliminate such barriers within our own borders. Present freight rate differentials amount to a tariff on southern products. The biggest boon to the south now would be the changing of these rates.

King Cotton Deethroned?
The problem which has plagued Dixie for years—dependence on one crop—is on its way to solution. Diversification of farms is spreading up. Low feed costs are stimulating livestock raising and dairy farming. Meanwhile, the chemists are finding industrial uses for new crops such as soy-beans, tung trees, and sweet potatoes and for older crops such as cotton, tobacco, and peanuts. Hence, while King Cotton is a mighty sick man, the southern agricultural outlook is very bright.

Among the south's greatest assets are her water-power resources. The T.V.A. development is a great thing. If it is administered wisely and fairly, the huge power surplus should be completely utilized. Air-conditioning has played a big part in recent southern growth and, stimulated by cheap power, will continue to do so. We hear much about love wages in Dixie. People overlook the fact, however, that living costs in the south are very cheap. A house costing $5,000 to build in New England can be put up in the south for about $3,500 and can be heated for about $30 per year less. Food—particularly farm produce—sells for a song. After lower living costs are considered, southern wages are not far out of line.

Future For Young People
Certainly, if I were a young man would come down here in the south to "seek my fortune." We need more trained men here. Why stay in New York, Philadelphia, or Boston and starve when you can come down here where you can live comfortably and where you are really needed? Today, for instance, 9 of the 18 states which are rated as excellent business territories by sales map are in the south. Get in on the ground floor of this southern growth just as your forefathers got in on the ground floor of the industrial growth of the West. Diversification of industry through the industrial use of farm products is the way. What better spot in the world for it than here in the "new south"?

Now, just a mere glimpse into the southern neighbor. Ever since I have been visiting your section—15 winters now—I have been conscious of sectional, racial, and religious prejudices here. Such prejudices are foolish and destructive. They are holding back our development. You in the south have everything for good climate, reasonable labor, vast raw materials, and plenty of water-power. Your one drawback is a failure to cooperate enthusiastically. I bet you not to shake your tremendous advantages by outward prejudices.

Social Sciences as Taught at Lawrence College Review Past to Give Students Strong Foundation for the Present

This is No. 16 in the series of articles prepared by the Appleton Post-Crescent to acquaint its readers more thoroughly with the men and women at Lawrence, and the advantages which Lawrence offers students. This is the first of two articles discussing the social sciences offered at Lawrence.

BY VIOLA HELLERMANN

The goal of modern social science instruction as it is offered at Lawrence college especially fits it for a vital place in the curriculum of a liberal arts college. It endeavors to prepare young people for their roles in a dynamic world—one in which the future is unknown. It is not a mere training in the skills or knowledge of the past. It is an interpretation and an attempt to understand past and present trends in human development and to apply that knowledge toward an understanding of present and coming changes.

Courses in history, economics, government, sociology, psychology, education, philosophy, religion and the Bible are offered in the social science division of the college.

As taught at Lawrence college, history is distinctly a social science as well as one of the humanities. Far from being a merely political-military narrative, it is a story of the development of civilization in all phases of human experience and activity. It deals not with a dead but with a living past, emphasizing especially that past which is still vital in the present. Its outlook is not provincial or nationalistic, but cosmopolitan. All history is studied as a part of world history.

Seek Understanding
"We aim to trace the evolution of our institutions, beliefs and culture, so as to learn how we got this way," Dr. A. Trever, chairman of the department of history and government, explains. "The intimate interdependence of history and all other social sciences is therefore strongly emphasized. At Lawrence history takes on a distinctly social function. It makes the student at home in his present world by giving him an understanding and appreciation of all the rich heritage of the past that still lives in his present environment, and through an intelligent understanding of the historic process by which his institutions and beliefs have come to be what they are, he is able to take a more enlightened and progressive attitude toward them."

Dr. Trever, a distinguished historian, is the author of "History of Ancient Civilization," the first volume of which was published in 1936 and the second, this year. Both volumes are in wide use as texts in leading universities and colleges. He is also the author of "History of Greek Economic Thought," published by the University of Chicago Press in 1915 and of several articles on the economic history of Greece and other phases of Greek civilization.

At Lawrence he teaches courses in the history of ancient civilization, the history of medieval Europe and the history of modern times and does tutorial work in intellectual and institutional history.

Lawrence Alumnus
Dr. Trever is himself an alumnus of Lawrence college, having received his bachelor of arts degree there in 1896. Thereafter he received a bachelor of divinity degree from Boston university, in 1900, and M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Chicago in 1911 and 1913. Before he returned to Lawrence to serve on the faculty in 1905, Prof. Trever was an instructor for two years at De Pauw university and studied for one year in Germany. He was absent on leave from Lawrence in 1911-12 for study and teaching in the University of Chicago; in 1923-24 to be assistant professor of ancient history at Cornell university; and in 1924 to study and travel in Europe. He has served on the faculty of summer sessions at the University of Chicago, Northwestern university, the University of Washington and the University of California, and was on the faculty of the "Floating University" in 1926-27. In the summer of 1928 he was lecturer in history on the James Boring Mediterranean cruise.

Dr. Trever is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Tau Kappa Alpha honorary fraternities, of Phi Theta, social fraternity, and of the American Historical association and the American Association of University Professors.

Another veteran in the Lawrence college history department is Prof. William F. Rancey, who is nearing the end of 19 years service at the college. His main interest lies in English history and the history of modern Europe, both of which he teaches at Lawrence.

Was Rhodes Scholar
Dr. Rancey received his common and high school education at Hastings, Neb., and afterwards for three years attended Hastings college, a Presbyterian institution in the same city. In 1910 he went to Oxford, England, as Rhodes scholar from Nebraska and received his bachelor of arts degree there in August, 1913. He was able to spend eight or nine months each in France and in Germany, and for one semester he was a student at the University of Leipzig.

After his return from Europe, Prof. Rancey was for three years graduate student at the University of Wisconsin, where he was a fellow, or assistant, in the history department. Then he took an instructorship in French for a year, and in 1919 received his Ph. D. degree. His first two years at Lawrence were spent as a professor of French but for the last 17 years he has spent all of his time to history teaching. He has published a few articles and book reviews. Of late years he has given considerable time to the history of Wisconsin.

The most recent addition to the history department is Dr. Richard Cummings, who came here in 1937. He received his B. A. degree from Hobart college in 1932 and his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from Harvard university in 1933 and 1935, respectively. He was on the research staff of the University of Chicago from 1935 to 1937 and instructed in the University college the same year. His special interest is American

Teaches Government
Donald M. DuShane, who holds the position of associate professor of government at Lawrence college, is a former newspaperman, salesman and office and building manager. He did his undergraduate work at Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind., and his graduate work at Columbia university. Before he came to Lawrence in 1935 he was for four years instructor in government at Columbia college.

At Lawrence he teaches American government—city, state and national; comparative government—governmental organization in democracies and dictatorships, including the theories involved in each case; and is in charge of tutorial courses in public administration, legislation, international relations, political and legal theory.

Far from retreating from the world in moss-covered halls of learning, Mr. DuShane takes an active interest in the local civic life. He ran for alderman in the municipal elections this spring and is assisting the committee which is making plans for a county citizenship day.

The department of economics and sociology at Lawrence college, closely allied with that of history and government, has its chairman this year, Dr. Lawrence W. Towle, who joined the faculty in 1935 and is now teaching courses in international trade and finance, statistics, economic history of Europe and government and industry.

Objectives
Objectives of the economics department, as set forth briefly by Prof. Towle, are:

"To acquaint the student with our economic institutions, past and present, the functioning of our economic system and the interrelations of economic life and other aspects of life."

"To apprise the student of the problems arising from our economic system."

"To train the student in economic analysis."

Dr. Towle received his B. A. degree from Bowdoin college in 1924, an M. A. from Harvard university in 1927 and a Ph. D. from Harvard in 1932. Before coming to Lawrence college he taught at Amherst college, Harvard university, Williams college and Colgate university. He had spent three years in the banking business in Maine before he entered the teaching profession, and he has also engaged in newspaper reporting. This winter he has been teaching a course in credit management for bank employees at the vocational school.

A member of the American Economic association and of Phi Beta Kappa and Psi Upsilon fraternities, Dr. Towle has published articles in the American Economic Review and the Harvard Business Review.

Teaching At Buffalo
Dr. Mendell Morton Bober, professor of economics who has been on the Lawrence faculty since 1927, is teaching at the University of Buffalo this semester. At Harvard university, where he won his Ph. D. degree, he distinguished himself by winning the Wells prize, the highest scholastic honor in the economics department. He had received his B. A. degree from the University of Montana.

While at Lawrence Dr. Bober has made two significant contributions to economic theory, one in a volume of essays dedicated to Prof. Carver, the other in a similar volume dedicated to Prof. Taussig, both of Harvard. Bober was a tutor and instructor at Harvard for five years before he came to Lawrence. The courses he teaches at Lawrence include corporations and the trust problem, money and banking and economic theory.

Prof. Bober's place is being filled this semester by Wesley C. Ballaine, who was associated with the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco at Seattle, Wash., for several years and served as national chairman of publicity for the American Institute of Banking. He received his bachelor and master degrees from the University of Washington and for the last two years has been doing graduate work in economics at the University of Chicago. He has written a number of articles on banking and financial problems.

Another aspect of economics, the field of human relations and social reforms, is represented on the economics department faculty by Dr. William A. McConagha, whose professional interest lies in that direction. At Lawrence he teaches courses in public finance, labor problems and proposed economic reforms. He has had experience in other fields, among them farming, high school teaching and military service, the latter with the U. S. M. C., Fifth regiment, for the duration of the war. Muskingum college granted him his B. S. degree, and he received his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Illinois. He taught for four years as a graduate assistant at the University of Illinois and has been at Lawrence since 1926. All courses in sociology at Lawrence this year are being taught by George A. Douglas, who received his Ph. M. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1930 and his Ph. D. this year from Johns Hopkins university.

This is Dr. Douglas' first year at Lawrence, but he taught for two years at Hood college, Frederick, Md., and has traveled extensively. He studied on the Floating university of 1928-29, which visited over 20 countries, was a member of the social science commission to Russia in the summer of 1932 and spent four months in Europe in the summer of 1934 studying in centers of sociological and economic interest.

Sociology courses being taught this year are introduction to sociology, which introduces the student to the scientific study of society; criminology and penology, in which a study is made of the individual and social causes of crime and of

Music Festival Planned April 22

Five Schools are Entered In Non-Competitive Events at Waupaca

Waupaca.—Parents of students who will participate in the Central Wisconsin conference music festival which is to be held in this city April 22, met with directors of the glee clubs, orchestra and band at the high school Thursday evening to complete plans for that event.

Mrs. W. G. Rudersdorf will be in charge of the supper which is to be held for principals and directors at the Anne of Green Gables tea room. Mrs. Reid McLean will plan for refreshments for the students and Mrs. A. M. Christofferson will arrange for other auditoriums than the high school where events may take place. Roy Luther will handle ticket sales.

The festival which is not competitive, but a group of cooperative effort, opens with band and vocal concerts at 1:15 p. m., a down town parade at 4:30 p. m., a 6:30 supper for directors and principals and a student mixer from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. in the gymnasium which will be followed by an evening concert at 7:45 by the combined bands. Manawa, Amherst, Marion and Weyauwega are joining Waupaca in the festival.

Conservation Club Will Hold Booster Party at Greenville

The Outagamie Conservation club's annual booster party will be held at the Silver Dome hall at Greenville May 9.

Eugene Sanborn, of the state conservation department, will show three motion pictures on conservation and will be the principal speaker.

An outdoor motor will be given away by the club and Dr. A. Lester Koch, a member.

Critics Unanimous in Praising Famous St. Olaf College Choir

Few musical organizations have enjoyed the unanimous acclaim of the critics as has the St. Olaf choir, which will appear in concert at Memorial chapel Wednesday evening, April 19.

The organization, composed of 80 carefully selected voices from the college student body, has repeatedly toured the country from east to west, winning highest praise from music critics of leading newspapers in New York, Chicago, Denver, Los Angeles and other cities.

The choir has been trained and its concerts are conducted by Dr. F. Mellus Christensen, whose choral ideals were absorbed in classes directed by Cantor Gustav Schreck at University of Leipzig, who for many years was the leader of the celebrated Thomas church choir.

Dr. Christensen retains only such voices as are free from untowardness and disposition to breathiness, and the result is perfection of balance, precision of attack and release, and flawless intonation.

It is difficult to convey to those who have not heard this group the likeness and control of the body of tone, for the 80 voices are exactly like one voice multiplied by 60.

An eminent critic once said of the choir: "Their pianissimo is of wonderful tenacity, fine-spun as silk, yet never lacking in musical quality. Their dynamics are their own and the ensemble effects are quite flawless. For the benefit of those among our readers who have never heard this choir, let me repeat it is the greatest of its kind in America, perhaps in the world."

APPLETON, WISCONSIN, FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1939

H. S. Athletes Clash Saturday

Appleton, Twin Cities
Students to Compete
In Intramural Meet

SOMETHING new in Appleton High school activity will be inaugurated in the intramural meet between Appleton, Neenah and Menasha high schools this weekend.

Groups and individuals from the three schools will compete in 18 different events including swimming, ping-pong, volleyball, tennis, badminton, basketball, golf, bowling, shuffleboard, handball, rope climbing, basketball, free throws, checkers, Chinese checkers, chess, boxing, wrestling and the tug-of-war.

More than 200 boys from the three cities are expected to compete. The social and individual angles of the sports involved will be emphasized rather than points.

Activity will start this afternoon after school when Neenah and Menasha bring bowling teams composed of students and faculty members to Appleton. The bowling will be at the Arcade alleys. Bob Forster will captain a senior team of Frank Kamps, Hank Mader, Reuben Horn and John Blick.

Jim Weisgerber will captain a junior team composed of Babe and Cy Bayer, Carleton Fredericks and Bob Otto. Two faculty teams including Joseph Shields, W. C. Pickett, Myron Selms, Bruno Krueger, Clem Ketchum, Peter Giovannini, Marvin Babbler, Harvey Gyg and Kenneth Edge will meet a team from each of the Neenah and Menasha schools.

At Menasha Saturday A.M. Saturday morning play will be resumed at Menasha High school. A bus will leave Appleton High school at 8:15 carrying swimmers, volleyball players, and ping-pong artists. Swimmers taking part will be Captain Dick Fox, Ralph Gerlich, Jim Miller, Bill Morris, Bud Sager, Don Vanderlois, Roy Thomas, Jack Lally, Moody Coon, Bud Thomas, Carleton Fredericks, George Koehnke, Bill Mullen, Bob Bailey, Chuck Samble, Bob Milhaupt and Wayne Beschke.

Volleyball will show three teams, a soph, junior and senior group. Sophs will be captained by Bill De Long who will have Ken Thompson, Chuck Kleifoth, Don Jabas, Don Strutz, Alfred Plette, Jerry Oswalt, Don Newton, Bruce Curry and John Leonard. Juniors will have Don Jones, captain, Bob Lathrop, Don Heinritz, Henry Koletzke, Ralph Junge, Tom Reider, Charles Rolins, Ralph Kasten and Ray Brascen. Seniors, with Captain Sonny Filz, will show Bud Werner, Glen Bowser, Bob Block, Bill Besch, Don Rohloff, Bob Forster and Sam Fredericks.

Ping-pong will show Bob Milhaupt and Hugh Wagner, seniors; Captain Bill Stark and Carleton Powers, Juniors; and Dave Blacher and Jim Forster, sophs. Returning to Appleton for activities in the afternoon, competition will begin at 2 o'clock in badminton, shuffleboard, handball, checkers, Chinese checkers and chess.

Bob Bailey will head the badminton players with Larry Heckle, Bob Steudel, Leslie Wolf, Carleton Powers and James Acon. Singles and doubles matches will be played. Shields and Blum will represent the Appleton faculty.

Handball will be captained by Bud De Leest with John Blick, Carleton Fredericks, Warren Williamson, Bill Burton, Mike Goehler.

32 Survivors at A.A.U. Mitt Meet

All That's Left to Entry
From 26 States

San Francisco —(AP)—Thirty-two survivors of elimination rounds battle for America's greatest amateur boxing awards tonight in semi-finals and finals of the national A.A.U. championships. Champions will be crowned in the eight weight divisions. Two of three defending champions still were on hand and most of the favorites came through as expected.

Tonight's 32 young gladiators were what's left of an entry list of 182, representing 60 cities in 26 states and Hawaii.

Billy Speary of Philadelphia, bantamweight champion the past two years, kept in the running with a technical knockout over Eddie Yasui of Honolulu, national junior title-holder in 1934, in the third round.

Shawano, West Bays
Will Tangle Saturday

Shawano — The 1939 edition of Shawano High school track squads will travel to Green Bay Saturday to open the track season against the West High Wildcats. The Shawano contingent, expected to be strong on the track but comparatively weak in the field events, is given little chance to upset the powerful West high squad.

After meeting West the Shawano thin-clads will compete against Green Bay East and Appleton on consecutive weekends before entering the conference and district meets.

Toonen, Lutz Cop Oshkosh Fights

Hoxey Lamers. Little Chute. Bows to Al Robbins, Oshkosh

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—Savior Canadeo, colorful St. Norbert College boxer knocked out Joe Johnson of Milwaukee in the third round here last evening in the double windup sponsored by the Oshkosh Amateur Sports association.

On the other half of the double-windup, Cornelius Young, Chicago Golden Gloves Champion, 1938 and also from St. Norbert college lost on points in five rounds to Larry Chalmers, United States Diamond Belt Champion of Detroit.

In the semi-windup, Tuffy Toonen, Appleton won over Marro Rodden in the 125 pound class. Cliff Lutz, Appleton, bested Eddie Troxell, Oshkosh, 145 pounds; Benny Cummings, colored Milwaukee lad, took the decision over Jerry Gutman, Fond du Lac, at 147 pounds; Jim Coyne, Fond du Lac, and Vicie Van, colored Milwaukee youth, gave the best exhibition of the evening, both lads battling an even three rounds but Coyne having the slight edge was given the decision. Al Robbins, Oshkosh, took Hoxey Lamers, Little Chute, in the final semi-windup bout.

Chicago Gymnasts to Defend National Title

Chicago —(AP)—Forty of the nation's leading college gymnasts, most of them out to defend Chicago's title, will compete tomorrow for 1939 national collegiate honors at the major field house.

Individual champions in every event also will be back with Joe Giallombardo, 1938 flying ring and tumbling winner, expected to lead a favored Illinois squad to the team title. Southern California was regarded as the chief threat to the Big Ten champions.

Other team entries were Army, Temple, Minnesota, Washington University of St. Louis, Greeley (Colo.) Teachers and Denison (O.) University.

Becher Taverns Will Hold First Practice

Becher Taverns of the Fox River Valley league will hold their initial practice at 1:30 Sunday afternoon at the Spencer street diamond.

Manager Wallie Murphy expects many of the veterans to be on hand and has invited all prospects to work out. Appleton will open the season here May 7 against Manitowoc and plenty of stiff drills augmented by some practice games are in store for the squad.

Among players expected to be back this year are Ray Rippl and the Pope boys in the outfield and Cotton, T. Murphy and Wonsler in the infield. Cliff and C. Burton are expected to try for berths on the squad.

L. LUEDERS and A. Van Caster each had games of 217 and the latter wound up with a 582 series to share individual honors during Women's City league matches at Arcade alleys last night. Top team totals were registered by Automotive Supply company with 871 and Bellings Drugs with 2543.

Cary Oil Burners dropped two games to Kolosso Garage but remained far out in front. A. Kolosso poked a 208 single and L. Geske a 488 triple for the winners while L. Cotton grooved 490 for the losers.

Automotive Supply company and Bellings Drugs engaged in the closest match of the evening with the latter winning the odd game. The first one ended in a tie and the Supply quint won in the roll-off. Drugs won the other two games by margins of 10 and 3 pins. A. Van Caster paced the winners and G. Koerner added a 203 game. M. Schinke was high for the losers with a 204 game.

Two games went to State Restaurant in a match with Heinie's Tavern. P. Horne crowded the maps for a 513 series to pace the victors while R. Noffke rattled 341 for the losers.

Appleton to Have Baseball Team in Winnebago League

A 6-team circuit is practically assured and an 8-team loop is a possibility as a result of a reorganization meeting of the Winnebago league at Oshkosh this week. Definitely signed up are Appleton, Menasha, Oshkosh, Omro and Zittau. Clubs from Fond du Lac, Berlin and Ripon may come into the circuit when another meeting is held Wednesday night, April 19, at 23 Main street, Oshkosh.

Two Oshkosh applications were received by one of the squads was not accepted because of the shortage of available playing and practice diamonds and the conflict with Sunday schedules of two other local leagues.

Louis Werthman, league organizer, said today the schedule would be adopted, umpires selected and other matters cleaned up at the next meeting.

Every Day in Every Way Those Prizes for Fishermen's Party Get Better and Better

BY GORDON MCINTYRE

EVERY day in every way the prize list for the third annual Post-Crescent Fishermen's Party gets better and better. Not only that, but the prizes are definitely articles the fisherman can use.

They range from fishing articles to grease and oil for his car after a fishing trip, to a first aid packet if he should happen to get caught on a hook or get careless with some of those fish which have dorsal fins as sharp as spears.

Appleton merchants have been cooperating very well in offering prizes for the party for they appreciate that it is one of the biggest fishing events in the state outside of Milwaukee which, of course, has facilities for handling a much larger crowd. And don't think we wouldn't be pleased if we could seat a larger crowd.

Here's a Warning

There's one thing about the local prizes we'd like to have made clear. No prize will be exchanged by a merchant unless it's for size in the case of items of wearing apparel. We aren't interested in having people at the party who are there in the hopes they can win something and then turn it into cash or exchange it for some other item. It's a fishermen's party and the prizes are being confined as much to items which will interest fishermen as possible.

Schlafers have offered a Shakespeare metered reel which tells how far you cast and which is a perfect piece of fishing equipment. It has a value of $12 and is simple and easy to operate. The reel measures the length of the cast, indicates the amount of line out while trolling, determines the level at which fish are biting best, locates break offs, and is entertaining even when the fish aren't biting. There's a magnifying lens over the indicator dial and a new adjustable gear shell drag. It comes in a genuine walnut box with 50 yards of 18 pound super silk casting line. A slit cork arbor also is furnished.

John Hantschel, county clerk, found that fishing licenses make a very interesting prize, and is offering three of them outright and with the Post-Crescent cooperating, will offer five additional. They will offer five additional. They make a prize any fisherman can use, Mr. Hantschel said, because few licenses are issued until in May and few fishermen therefore have one for this year.

Two rather new prizes will come from Johnston's Book store and from Rufus Lowell's drug store. The book store is offering a year's subscription to the magazine Field and Stream. And that means a full year's information about fishing and hunting. There's a lot of information and reading matter in a year's issue.

The Lowell drug store is offering a first aid kit and there's no denying it will serve a very definite need. It's in a container and can be kept in a handy place around the house when you aren't fishing or traveling. It's a most serviceable prize.

The Pettibone-Peabody company is offering a woolen sport shirt of the finest grade. It comes in interesting colors and is attractive and exceptionally warm. It's an ideal bit of equipment for fishing on those northern trout fishing junkets. And if you happen to be a hunter, there'll be plenty of opportunity to use it in the fall.

And supposing you catch a couple big ones on that fishing trip, then what? Well, Frank Koch of the Koch Photo Shop is offering a $10 Eastman Kodak which will enable you to duly record for the scoffers and for posterity yourself and the big ones that didn't get away. It is an excellent camera with a minimum of gadgets to operate. You can't miss getting a picture with it. And of course the camera can also be used for numerous other purposes. It's a great gift.

Play First Round In National YMCA Cage Tournament

Jamestown, N. Y. —(AP)—Four state championship Y. M. C. A. basketball teams were poised today to resume their quest after national honors, with two non-title squads to dispute their passage.

Survivors of yesterday's opening round play, the champions of Michigan, Pennsylvania and Indiana awaited tonight's second round play. The Illinois titleholders had a bye until tomorrow.

Michigan's representative was Flint, paired tonight with the host Jamestown quintet. Reading, the Pennsylvania winner, and a championship Indianapolis team were matched in the other contest.

Idle until tomorrow's semi-finals were Peoria, Illinois champion, and the Washington, Pa., squad.

Team scores in the first round included: Peoria 32, White Plains 24; Indianapolis 58, Newport 46.

Fans Interested in Whether Gehrig Is at End of Career

BY GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK —(AP)—The question most frequently asked of a correspondent just returned from the baseball training camps might surprise you. In the last week I've been asked fifty times: "How does Gehrig look?"

A few want to know if the Cincinnati Reds really have the stuff to win in the National league, to which the invariable answer is yes, providing their pitching lives up to promise. But most of the fans ask after the old "iron horse," and with mixed feelings.

The Yankees' supporters inquire hopefully, because many of them never saw the three-time champions play with anyone except Lou on first base and because they honestly dread the day when he must step down for a younger man.

The others — those who never have liked the Yanks much, anyway, and would like to see their strangle-hold on baseball broken — ask because they see in Lou's eventual retirement the beginning of the end for the bombers. They probably are mistaken about this, for Gehrig's departure shouldn't make much difference to the Yankees one way or another.

To both camps the answer is Gehrig, approaching 36, has slowed up dreadfully and has been brooding for a month over his inability to hit, but he will be on first base when the Yankees open the season next week and will remain there unless manager Joe McCarthy absolutely has to take him out.

McCarthy will be a sad man the day he doesn't write Gehrig's name on the slip he hands to the head umpire. I imagine he would like to see Lou complete this season, help the Yanks break all records by winning their fourth straight world championship, and then retire voluntarily to his home on the Hudson.

Nothing but an injury to Gehrig or a collapse of the Yankees such as is difficult to imagine will get Lou out of the line-up this year.

Some of the experts who have watched Gehrig train day after day this spring predicted he will do all right once the season gets under way. Lou helped along this line yesterday by smashing out two home runs and a pair of singles in his first hitting spree of the year.

Mullen Victor in Handball Finals

Defeats Leo J. Murphy for Class B Championship At Y. M. C. A.

Tom Mullen won the Class B hand ball championship at the Y.M.C.A. last night when he defeated Leo J. Murphy in two straight games by scores of 21 to 15 and 21 to 9. Mullen played sensational handball and showed a complete reversal over his match with Murphy a week ago, when Murphy defeated him two out of three games.

Mullen showed a fast serve which scored him many ace points. Both men showed fine form in the first game with each taking his turn in leading. As the game progressed, Mullen grew stronger and passed Murphy repeatedly on his left to score points. Murphy, on the other hand, seemed to weaken and the fast, driving game which Mullen was playing soon wore him down.

In the future Mullen will compete in Class A competition and as the Class B winner will have his name placed on the regular handball plaque.

May 1 Final Date For Signing Farm Plans Under AAA

Procedure Necessary to Participate in 1939 Program

Outagamie county farmers have until May 1 to express their intentions to participate in the 1939 AAA program by completing and signing farm plans according to Joseph Garvey, chairman of the county AAA committee. Farmers cannot request inspection for determining performance and obtaining payment in this year's program unless they sign farm plans.

Information received this week from Harry Wells, of the Wisconsin State AAA committee, disclosed that a total of 447,500 Wisconsin farmers and 1,191,000 in the 10 North Central states had already indicated their intentions to participate in the program this year by signing farm plans. North Central farmers began signing their farm plans in February. A majority of those already signed were completed in March, and indications are that a large number of additional plans will be signed in the region during April.

Garvey is urging all farmers, who plan to participate in the 1939 farm program to see their local AAA committeemen and complete a farm plan as soon as possible. The plan shows the acreage allotments, the soil-building goals, and maximum payments for the farm, and it is a map to use in working out the farming system which the producer considers best for the farm in 1939.

No farm inspection for the purpose of determining performance and payments it is said will be made on farms for which farm plans are not made out by May 1, except where landlords request such inspection by letter to the county committee. Officials announce that either the completion of the farm plan for participation or a letter from the landlord, indicating his intention to participate in the 1939 program, received by the county committee by May 1, will assure inspection of a farm for the purpose of determining performance.

Make Final Analysis Reports on Soil Tests

Chilton — Soil analysis reports have been mailed on over 100 soil samples that have been tested during the last few weeks by Ben Wagner, who is in charge of the work in Calumet county, according to A. L. McMahon, county agricultural agent. Some of the reports indicate that many of the farm lands are perhaps in better shape today than they were a generation ago, McMahon said, while others show need for corrective measures toward increasing fertility.

In some cases the tests indicate that there is insufficient calcium. Commonly called lime, but in the majority of cases it is a deficiency of phosphorus. The testing service still is available, McMahon advised.

Seybold Ships Holstein Calf to Colorado Farm

Forest Junction — A purebred Holstein calf from the herd at the Leonard Seybold farm was forwarded from here in an express shipment Tuesday evening, consigned to Frank E. Damitz, Weldona, Colo., who is building up a select herd of that breed in that state. The calf, both through sire and dam, traces its ancestry back to the noted Sir Pieterje Ormsby Mercedes 37th, its dam having a two-year old record of 10,628 pounds of milk and 356 pounds of fat on a 3.6 test.

Home Economics Club To Hold Open Meeting

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau — An open meeting for members of the Home Demonstration Club program in Winnebago county will be held Thursday, April 20 at the Zittau Hall on U. S. highway 10, according to Helen Briggs, Winnebago county demonstration agent.

Dr. Ralph Bridgeman, national authority on parental education and child development, Chicago, will be the principal speaker.

This meeting is open to all women in the north end of the county.

Store at Black Creek Is New Cooperative

Articles of cooperative association have been filed by the Black Creek Consumer's store with Stephen Peeters, Outagamie county registrar of deeds. Capital stock of the cooperative is $10,000 with 2,000 shares at $5 each. The cooperative will handle farm products. The articles are signed by J. J. Laird, president, and L. A. Brusewitz, secretary.

April, May Best Time To Vaccinate Horses

April and May are the best months to vaccinate horses for sleeping sickness and this method of prevention should not be taken later than the middle of June, according to Dr. B. A. Beach, head of the state department of veterinary science, in a letter to J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent. The evidence in favor of vaccination as a means of protection is decidedly favorable, he points out.

Fly nets and fly sprays are of value, as the fewer insects that bite horses the better is their chance of escape from the disease, Dr. Beach says. When a horse comes down with the disease cold packs may be put on its head and the veterinarian should be called.

Mrs. Schoettler Is Renamed Head Of Jolly Workers

Other Officers of Home Economics Club Also Re-elected

Mrs. John Schoettler was re-elected president of Jolly Workers home economics club at a meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. George R. Wettengel, 915 E. Alton street. Mrs. Schoettler, who has been making her home for several months in Milwaukee, was present at the meeting.

Other officers who were again named were Mrs. Henry Culbertson, vice president, and Mrs. Thomas Landers, secretary-treasurer. New leaders are Mrs. Andrew Bartlein, Mrs. Sherman Kline, Mrs. Malcolm McCoy and Mrs. Elmer Gast, and the alternates include Mrs. Leonard Schlitz, Mrs. Sophie Anderson and Mrs. Ervin Tellock.

Henry J. Van Straten, Outagamie county superintendent of schools, spoke on district schools and their location. The club had a lesson on fish and learned how to make fish loaf, horseradish sauce and codfish rarebit. An invitation was extended to the club to attend the Eighth district federation convention at Two Rivers May 2 and 3. Twenty-eight women were present.

Harry Hoefel, city attorney, will speak at a meeting of Outagamie Federation of Rural Women's clubs next Tuesday at Appleton Woman's club, on the subject of "Child Delinquency."

Fruit Growers of County Organize

Farmers Form Association to Aid in Fruit, Garden Production

Menasha — Winnebago county farmers have organized the Winnebago County Fruit and Garden Growers association, an organization intended to promote and direct the activities in the county that have to do with fruit and garden production, according to R. C. Heffernan, Winnebago county agricultural agent.

Arthur Jahnke, route 3, Neenah, is vice president of the group while Arthur Plummer, route 4, Oshkosh, is the president. The next meeting will be May 3 at the county agent's office. The orchard spray program will be discussed.

Benefits of commercial fertilizers on small grains will be studied through the planting of 20 experimental grain plots in Winnebago county this year, according to R. C. Heffernan. The plots will be scattered over the county to include different types of soils. Various fertilizers in various amounts will be applied and results checked.

Recent figures received by the county agent show that 22 per cent of the cattle in Winnebago county have been tested under the federal voluntary plan for Bane's disease eradication. Outagamie county had 18 per cent, Waupaca 23 per cent, and Calumet 12 per cent.

Winnebago County Sugar Beet Growers Who Have Asked for Acreage Allotments Under the AAA will Market their Sugar Beets through the Factories in the Menominee, Mich., and Green Bay Districts in 1939, according to the county agent. The Janesville factory will not operate this season.

Acreage allotments now are being distributed to growers in the Janesville district of which Winnebago county is a part.

Elocution-Oratory Contest Scheduled To be Held May 2

Little Chute — Four senior and four junior students of St. John High school are making preparations for an elocution and oratory contest which will be sponsored by the school Tuesday evening, May 2. The Rev. Gerald Van Nuland,

FIRST TEST-TUBE CALF AND MOTHER

Shawmut Sally Queen, first test tube baby in the nation's first cooperative association for artificial breeding of cattle is shown above with her mother. In New Jersey three dairy associations are breeding cattle by means of artificial insemination and a fourth is being formed.

Airplane May Broaden Field Of Test-Tube Cattle Breeding

Washington — Cattle breeding of tomorrow may be carried on by airplane.

A California dairyman is trying now to convince the department of agriculture it should make his cows with a government bull in South Carolina. And he wants to mate the government's Carolina cows with his bull in California.

The method—artificial insemination. It's been going on for some time, but without the long-distance implications that would make the airplane useful.

Artificial insemination was first worked — on dogs — in the late 1700's by an Italian scientist, Lazzaro Spallanzani, but the idea didn't take hold then. Now it is being used in Denmark, Great Britain, Russia and other European countries and is spreading in the United States.

In New Jersey three dairy associations are breeding cattle by means of artificial insemination and a fourth association is being formed. Similar organizations have been started in New York state. Another is getting under way in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The New Jersey activity has sprung up within a year. It took on a very practical aspect a few weeks ago when Shawmut Sally Queen wobbled around a Hunterdon County barnyard, the first testtube calf born in the nation's first cooperative cattle-breeding unit.

Breeding Project

The 400 members of the present New Jersey associations have entered 4,800 cows in a breeding project. These cows are served by 19 outstanding pedigree bulls.

Artificial breeding, dairymen say, multiplies many times the usefulness of great sires, puts milking cows in barn space formerly occupied by inferior bulls and eliminates the possibility of spreading disease.

The program started in New Jersey with the cooperation of Alice—a six-year old bull officially registered as N. J. E. S. Sir Mutual Ormsby Jewel Alice, father of 17 daughters with a more milk-more butterfat complex.

Alice should father 250 daughters a year for the next three years, under the artificial breeding plan. The limit under natural breeding would be 25 to 30.

Enos J. Perry, Rutgers dairy specialist, who has been a prime mover in the New Jersey project, warns farmers not to expect "magic results."

"The rate of conception on the average," he said, "is running as good as the natural figure and frequently cows in abnormal condition have conceived, but on the other hand some herds do not respond quite as well, for reasons not altogether known."

One of the obstacles to long-distance use of artificial insemination, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is that no sure way has been found to keep spermatozoa alive much longer than 24 hours. The government is experimenting in an effort to keep them alive long enough to permit transcontinental shipment by airplane.

More Heifers on Farms This Year

Dairymen Build Up Herds in Spite of Low Milk Prices

Wisconsin farmers are keeping more heifers and heifer calves for milk than a year ago, according to recent estimates made by the crop reporting service of the state and federal departments of agriculture.

With abundant feed supplies, Wisconsin dairymen have been building up their herds in the last year in spite of low milk prices. The number of milk cows has increased and is the largest since 1934. Milk production is at a relatively high level. With a strong demand for milk cows, the price of these animals is now the highest in about 30 years.

Estimates show that there are about 424,000 heifers one to two years old on Wisconsin farms or about 14,000 more than a year ago. The number of heifer calves being kept for milk cows is probably the largest for any year in the state's history, according to estimates of the Crop Reporting Service. At the time of the livestock inventory, there were 468,000 heifer calves being saved for milk cows by Wisconsin farmers, an increase of 27,000 above a year ago.

speech director of the school, is in charge of the affair. Senior elocution students who have entered the contest are Dorothy Mae Heesacker and Henry Van Grinsven and the senior oratory contestants are Eileen Vander Velden and Robert St. Aubin. Junior contestants are Joan Hermens and Eugene Bevers, oratory and Verna West and Margaret Mary De Groot, elocution. "Mother Mine," a play in three acts was chosen Wednesday as the senior class play. The cast will be selected within the next week.

Theodore Williamsen, Madison street, is confined to his home because of illness.

A.A.U.W. Hears Address on Mining in Belgian Congo Area

Waupaca—Mrs. Lester Emans was hostess to the American Association of University Women at her home Tuesday evening. Mrs. James H. Van Wagenen, Stevens Point, state chairman of the drama committee of the A. A. U. W., was a guest.

Dessert was served at 7:30 by the hostess assisted by Mesdames Irving Hansen and Phil Darling and the regular business meeting followed. Election of officers was included in the business session, with Mrs. Waldon Hanson of the Wisconsin Veterans' Home assuming the presidency. Mrs. Irving Hanson was elected secretary.

Gilbert Moody, Weyauwega, supervisor of WPA of Waupaca county related his experiences as prospector and miner while working for the Formuier company of Belgium, in the Congo region, South Africa.

To reach Tshikapa, head post of the mining company, it was necessary to take a boat trip up the Belgian Congo for 100 miles, landing at Matadi (meaning rock), where they had to unload. At this point the rapids begin, and a narrow gauge railway took them to Kinchasa, a distance of 250 miles, requiring two days. This village is located on Stanley pool, a lake at the head of the rapids, and so named because it was where Stanley went in search of Livingstone. Here a three day journey on a river boat on the Congo took them to Kasai river. The boats on the river are similar to the old Mississippi river boats when the white people used the upper deck and the natives stayed below. Eighteen days on the trip was followed by two weeks wait for another boat to go the rest of the distance which required three days, to reach the headwaters of navigation, Djokopunda. From that point Mr. Moody traveled with four other men by tapyrus (hammocks slung on long poles and carried by six men). For three days they traveled this way, finally reaching Tshikapa. As much equipment was needed in the work, it was necessary to engage 100 natives to carry the load.

Mr. Moody stated that the government has now banned the use of tapyrus because of hardship on the natives. Traveling from four to five miles an hour, always on the run, they are broken in health within two years.

Starting with a crew of not more than thirty men, in 12 years of intensive mining the company was employing 22,000 natives.

At this point in Africa it is necessary for the white man to take five grains of quinine a day, but Mr.

float downstream where they would be gathered up by the natives who considered the meat a delicacy.

A license costing $500 now is required to hunt elephants, but if the hunter is fortunate enough to kill one, the tusks find a ready market bringing $8 to the pound, and since they average 200 pounds apiece, the license is soon paid for. One set brought the hunter $800.

Leopards, while not frequently seen, are often used for pets. A friend of Mr. Moody's had one for a pet but when it began to kill his chickens he decided to dispose of it and sent it to the zoo in Antwerp. Mr. Moody declared that when the man visited the zoo two years later he was immediately recognized by his erstwhile pet.

When cattle were brought into the interior, the lions followed, but until that time they were seldom seen. One ranch was equipped with 14,000 head of cattle, but 40 cows were required to furnish one pair of milk.

In 1932 Mr. Moody went to Rhodesia where he spent two years in the copper mines.

Moody noted that after a siege of the typhoid fever he did not have to continue its use.

The first time Mr. Moody went up the river he counted 4,000 hippopotami—the last time but one. With

Truck and Three Cars Damaged in Accident

Neenah — A truck and three automobiles were damaged slightly in two accidents in Neenah Thursday.

Cars driven by Claude Rhoades, 1730 W. Summer street, Appleton, and Ed Malouf, N. Commercial street, Neenah, collided at 8:20 in the morning on N. Commercial street in front of the latter's barbershop. The Appleton car was traveling south on N. Commercial street and the Malouf machine was pulling away from the curb when the accident occurred. The right rear fender and hub cap on the Rhoades car and the left front fender and front bumper on the Malouf machine were damaged.

A truck owned by Alva A. Clark, Irene street, and a car owned by Allyn Loppas, 128 Abby avenue, Neenah, collided at 7:10 in the evening on N. Commercial street. The vehicle were told that the truck was parked unoccupied in a driveway and rolled down a slight incline into the Loppas car which was parked at the curb. The rear of the truck and the side of the car were damaged.

Mayor Calls Special Meeting of Council

Menasha — A special meeting of the common council of Menasha has been called for 7:30 tonight at the city hall by Mayor W. H. Jensen. The subject of the call was for "any and all business."

Chief of order of the business at the council meeting tonight probably will be consideration of the plumbing ordinance. The ordinance has been under consideration of the council for some time. A more strict building code also is under consideration by the aldermen.

Plant Removes 263 Tons of Solids From Sewage During March

Menasha — The Neenah-Menasha sewage disposal plant removed more than 263 tons, 578,825 pounds, of solids from sewage treated during March, according to the monthly statistical report of J. M. Holderby, plant superintendent. The plant pumped 190.5 million gallons of sewage during the month.

The maximum pumpage during any one 24 hour period was 8,629,000 gallons while the minimum figure was 1,670,000 gallons. The maximum figure occurred during a 5-day period during which there was no precipitation.

The pumpage figure for March shows an increase over February, probably due to spring thaws, but does not approach the figure for March, 1938. During February 132,566,000 gallons were pumped and 486,132 pounds of solids were removed. During March, 1938, the month in which there was much precipitation and spring thawing, the plant pumped 269,356,000 gallons of sewage and removed 501,397 pounds of solids.

18 Women's Teams to Bowl Friday, Saturday

Neenah — Eighteen women's teams will compete for top money at 9 o'clock tonight and at the same time Saturday night at the annual Tri-City Women's Bowling tournament at the Neenah alleys.

The 10 teams which will compete tonight are Aug. Brandt, Kresges, Van Dyck Coal and Metropolitan Cafe, Appleton, four teams from the Banta Publishing company, Menasha, and Shells and Mellow Brew, Kaukauna. The eight teams which will bowl Saturday night are Neenah Banks and Calverts Specials, Neenah, Adler Brau and Tip Top, Menasha, and Jense Arcades, Copr Kettle, State Restaurant and Carry Oil Burners, Appleton.

Two shifts of doubles and singles will be rolled at 2 and 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Neenah Juniors Will Sponsor Card Party

Neenah — The Neenah High school junior class will sponsor a card party Friday evening, April 28, at the school, and Gertrude Kraut, chairman, and Thea Rausch are co-chairmen of the committee in charge of the event, according to Clarence Brendendick, class adviser.

The purpose of the card party is to raise money to sponsor the annual junior-senior reception which will be held in May.

The high school freshmen class will stage a frolic Saturday night in the gymnasium.

New Council Will Convene Tuesday To Name Officials

Three New Aldermen, Two Incumbents Will Be Seated at Menasha

Menasha — The new Menasha council will convene for the first time next Tuesday night when three new aldermen will be seated and two incumbents again will take office for two-year terms.

The new aldermen will be Paul Laemmrich, who will succeed C. J. Reuwer, who was not a candidate for reelection in the First ward; John Pinkerton, who will succeed M. J. Grode, Third ward, who also was not a candidate, and William DeBruin, who will succeed John Eckrich in the Fifth ward.

The two incumbents who were successful in their campaigns for reelection were Edward Zeininger, Second ward, and Philip Michalkiewicz, Fourth ward. Hiring of city officials and appointments by the mayor to various city commissions will be the chief business of the session.

City officials who are to be re-named or replaced Tuesday include Peter J. Kasel, street superintendent; E. C. McKenzie, city attorney; A. E. McMahon, city engineer, and Theodore Beach, Jr., bookkeeper. A successor must be elected to succeed M. J. Grode, president of the council.

Two members of the school board will be named by the new council. Members whose terms expire are E. F. Dornbrook, First ward, and R. M. Woodhead, Third ward. Woodhead was elected last year to fill the term of C. E. Pierce, who moved from the ward. Joseph Riley, Art Scholl and William Kellett are holdover members of the board.

Three bridegrooms for the Mill street bridge also are to be named. Those appointed last year were Frank Harold, Al Stratton and Carl Mayer. Dr. L. S. Shemanski, city physician, and H. O. Haugh, city health officer, were named to two-year terms last year.

Mayor W. H. Jensen will make appointments to the park board, board of appeals and library board, subject to the approval of the council. The mayor also will appoint his council committees for the following year.

The term of Peter Borenz on the park board expires this year. Other members of the board and the year in which each term expires include T. M. Gilbert, 1940; George Banta, 1941; Louis Ellinger, 1942, and James Whelan, 1942.

On the board of appeals the terms of J. D. Michle and Jacob Liebl expire this year. Other members of the board are John Remmel, 1940, and V. M. Landgraf, 1941. The city engineer also acts as a member of the board.

The terms of our members of the library board expire this year. They are C. A. Peerenboom, Armin Weber, Edwin Ruby and Mrs. Althea Pierce. The terms of Mrs. D. H. Mackinnon and Ray J. Fink will expire in 1940.

Appointments to the fire and police commission, water and light commission and Neenah-Menasha sewerage commission will be made later in the year.

Boy Scouts Help Complete Rooms In Parish House

Two Patrols of St. Thomas Unit Join in Project Thursday

Menasha—Two patrols of boy scout troop No. 3, sponsored by St. Thomas Episcopal church, donated work clothes and mended tools Thursday night to help complete the scout club rooms in the parish house at a regular troop meeting.

The platoon of Frank Heckrodt, senior patrol leader, included the patrols led by William Huebner and Robert McMahon. The scouts constructed a door, whitewashed walls and cleaned trophy cases. Robert Gross and William Lawson were particularly handy with the whitewash brush.

A cement floor will be poured Saturday. In several days a handicraft room, shower room, trophy room, equipment room, and meeting room will be ready for activities. Scoutmaster Don Rusch supervised the activities.

Signal Drill

While half the troop engaged in carpentry, the other platoon, guided by Don Quinn, senior patrol leader, conducted a rigid signalling and knot-tying drill. They were instructed by Don Hohnberger and Al Krutz, assistant scoutmasters. The patrols led by Jack Draheim and William Grode took part in the work.

Scouts James Austin and Richard Flom each displayed and flew two model airplanes of their own construction. Ellsworth Grant passed an examination in compass and signalling while Orvil Grant met the requirements for the signalling test in Morse code.

Three new non-explosive lamps, a gift of the troop committee chairman, were presented for use at the scout cabin. The boys will complete a paper-collecting campaign on Saturday.

Following the meeting the 10-boy painting committee considered plans for the father and son banquet and other troop business.

Committee Expects Attendance Tonight to Pass 1,100 Mark

Neenah—More than 700 persons attended the opening of the Neenah Kiwanis club's annual Twin City Home show last night at the S. A. Cook armory. The show will be held tonight and Saturday night, the doors of the armory opening at 7:15.

The attendance last night was about the same as it was in the opening night of last year's show, and members of the committee in charge of the show predict that more than 1,100 persons will attend tonight.

Daredevil Art Hanson, Green Bay, "escape artist," performed two hazardous stunts as promotion for the show in the afternoon. He drove a car from the Valley Inn in Neenah to Menasha's square and back to the armory blindfolded, and then climbed the wall of the armory and walked along its ledge blindfolded.

Featuring the entertainment were Hanson's escape acts, the Jandrey style show and Fred Davis and his Six Harmonica Rogues. Many gifts were distributed.

Camera Club to Judge Pictures at Meeting

Neenah—"Prints will be judged at the meeting of the Winnebago Camera club Tuesday evening in the basement of the Neenah Public library.

Pictures of Miss Frances Whiting, E. Forest avenue, were taken by members of the club in a contest at the last meeting.

Nurse Association Defers Clinic Plans

Neenah—The Twin City Visiting Nurse association will not hold its child health center on Tuesday, April 18, but will plan for the center on National Child Health day, May 1, at the Roosevelt school from 9 to 12 noon, and from 1 to 4 o'clock. Special emphasis in display and talks will be on nutrition.

Charter Members Honored at Catholic Daughters' Banquet

Menasha—"You are included among those women who were willing to organize and work for our faith... with your efforts and work pleasure for greater accomplishments; you are the old guard, the foundation and though the task you started was big, you were willing, and from it you have derived a broader view and experienced the development of your spiritual, mental, and social life," said Mrs. S. E. Crockett, state regent, as she paid tribute to the charter members of Court Allouez, Twin City Catholic Daughters of America, at a dinner meeting in the Knights of Columbus club rooms.

The 25 charter members who were honored were Rose Brunsen, Hannah Corry, Nellie Hubbard, Anna Jourdain, Anna Landgraf, Margaret Liehl, Clara Luckenbach, Emma Luke, Agnes Mayer, Adele McGillan, Bridget McMahon, Jane and Grace McMahon, Flora Oberweiser, Hilda Oberweiser, Mary Patzel, Susan Oberweiser, Edna Loonans, Helen Schoetz, Rose Schreiber, Catherine Sommers, Josephine Traut, and Nell Webster.

The dinner in honor of the charter members was held at 6 o'clock. The tables were decorated with sweetpeas and tall green towers. Mrs. Ben Bolda, regent of Court Allouez, opened the program with a greeting to the charter members, after which she introduced Mrs. S. E. Crockett who spoke on "The Significance of Being a Charter Member." Songs dedicated to charter members were sung by the group under the direction of Mrs. Clough.

In Broadcast Form

During the study club program, held in the form of a broadcast, Mrs. Ella Bach discussed "The Influence of Our Faith on Motion Pictures" and Mrs. Catherine Schmalz discussed "Catholic Broadcasts and Radio."

Mrs. Bolda presented Dorothy Reimer, James Eckrich and Helen Poquette with the awards for first, second and third places in the essay contest sponsored by the local court in conjunction with the National Catholic Daughters. The subject for the contest was "Aims and Purposes of the Catholic Daughters of America as Applied to Catholic Action."

During the business session, Miss Genevieve Rogers was named as alternate to the grand regent, Mrs. Bolda, to the state convention and the court voted to join the Catholic Book of the Month club. Preliminary plans for initiation and Mother's day banquet were discussed.

Mrs. Dorothy Stulp, chairman, Mrs. C. A. Loewcher, Mrs. D. M. Rogers, Mrs. Gaylord Loewcher, Josephine Traut and Nell Webster were in charge of arrangements.

KINDERGARTEN YOUNGSTERS WORK ON LIBRARY PROJECT

Menasha—Kindergarten pupils of Nicolet school taught by Miss Mary Cleland have built a library and equipped it with books, reading tables, librarian's desk and all of the regular fixtures of a library. One of the youngsters acts as the librarian and the others draw books just as they do at Elisha D. Smith public library. Shown above are a group of the youngsters at the library. Seated at the left is Gwendolyn Royer while Mike Gannon is selecting a book from the shelf. At the table at the right are Phineas King, Beatrice Zeininger and Bruce Sodolski. In the background three youngsters are drawing books with Geraldine Rasmussen seated at the desk and acting as librarian. Those drawing books, left to right, are Donna Mae Mahoney, Bobby Rodgers and Bernice Brunn. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Nicolet School Kindergarten Pupils Build Modern Library

Menasha—Kindergarten pupils of Nicolet school are learning the correct use and care of books through play in a library of their own construction. For the last few weeks the children have been busy in the various steps of the project.

The children planned how the library was to be built and what each youngster could do to help. The work was carried on under the direction of Miss Mary Cleland, kindergarten instructor, by both the morning and afternoon kindergarten groups.

There was block building in the erection of the walls of the library and the librarian's desk, wood-working in construction of the shelves and bookends and sewing when pillows were made for the chairs. Cutting and pasting experience was necessary in making picture books. The children also gained practice in language expression in making signs and describing the work as it progressed.

Each Has Card

The children made book bags in which to carry home books. The library has been stocked with a supply of colorful books and each child has his library card with his own number.

While one of the youngsters acts as librarian the others select books they wish to look at. The librarian then charges the book to the borrower's card. The library has stimulated an interest in reading which the youngsters will learn in the first grade. The library practice also will help them when they go to draw books from the children's room of Elisha D. Smith public library.

Concert Funds to Aid Welfare Work

King's Daughters Will Sponsor Symphony Program Wednesday

Menasha—The Service Circle, Neenah-Menasha King's Daughters, are completing plans this week for the presentation of the Wisconsin Symphony orchestra under the direction of Dr. Sigfrid Praeger, at the Menasha High school auditorium Wednesday evening. Funds from the concert will be used by the Service Circle in its Twin City welfare program.

The King's Daughters not only distribute Christmas baskets which include gifts to 250 people but finance a hot luncheon program at both Neenah and Menasha high schools for undernourished children. The organization provides milk for the youngsters also. Two scholarships, each of $250, are given each year to a senior boy or girl in Neenah and Menasha high schools.

Another feature of the program of the Service Circle is its party program at the Sunnyside pavilion where on special holidays and on birthday anniversaries, members from the circle go to Sunnyside with party "fixings" and gifts for the children.

The Wisconsin Symphony orchestra performance is one of the major projects of the Neenah and Menasha group in order to raise funds for its welfare program. The orchestra with its 70 members is commended by music critics in every city that it has appeared.

Edward Dix, Menasha, instructor at the Lawrence college Conservatory of Music, will be guest pianist on the program.

Youth Injured When Tractor Hits Ditch

Neenah—Francis Lea, 19, route 2, Neenah, received a head injury when the steering apparatus on a home made tractor broke and the machine crashed into the ditch at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon on a side road near the Lea farm.

Francis was taken to Theda Clark hospital by a neighbor, and his condition today was not serious, hospital attaches reported. The boy landed on his head in the ditch when the accident occurred. The tractor was destroyed.

ELKS TO HOLD DANCE

Menasha—Members of the Menasha Elks will entertain at a dance Saturday night at the club rooms. Members of the lodge and their friends will be guests.

Bill Would Put Old Highway 41 On State System

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Transfer of a 10 mile strip of old highway 41 extending from McCarthy's crossing north of Kaukauna to the intersection of 41 with highway 10 west of the city of Appleton to the state highway system is proposed in an assembly bill authored by Assemblymen William J. Gantter of Kaukauna and Mark Catlin of Appleton, Republicans.

The bill would affect that part of the old highway which was replaced by the superhighway recently. With the completion of the latter, the old highway reverted to the county trunk system, and under highway commission regulations, became ineligible for state maintenance and state aids.

The result was an unfair burden on the county, according to the Outagamie county representatives. Their bill provides that the old strip become a part of highway 96, joining it near Kaukauna and bringing it into the city of Appleton to a junction with highway 10. The state highway commission has recently precipitated a controversy over a similar situation with the Winnebago county board of supervisors, who have protested at the prospect that the part of the highway within that county will become a part of the county system after the proposed belt-line is completed around Oshkosh.

The highway commission has refused to consider a change however, and has announced that the highway will be cut off from state maintenance budgets when the new line is finished.

Alumni Printers To Hold Banquet

Rev. W. A. Jacobs Will be Principal Speaker Tuesday

Menasha—Plans for the Alumni Printers' club banquet, which will be held at 6 o'clock next Tuesday night in the activities room of the Menasha high school, have been completed, according to Willard Galau, banquet chairman.

Elton Beattie, president of the alumni, will act as toastmaster. The address of the evening will be given by the Rev. W. A. Jacobs, pastor of the First Congregational church. Franklyn LeFevre, vocal music supervisor, will lead the group in songs with the accompaniment of Lamar Foth at the piano.

Introductions will be made by H. O. Griffith, printing instructor, F. B. Younger, superintendent of schools, and S. E. Crockett, director of vocational and adult education, also will speak briefly.

Gerald Jensen will give the welcome to the alumni while the response will be made by Norbert Hecker. Special entertainment will be furnished during the banquet. Immediately after the banquet officers of the alumni group will be elected.

Members of the ticket committee are contacting alumni members. Tickets may be secured from Carl Oederman, Neal Baldauf, Jack Engfer, Kenneth Finch, William Reser, Harry Zelinski, Ronald Zickert, Gaylord Thompson, Bernard Trader, Kenneth Maas or from Mr. Griffith.

Cars are Damaged in Accident Near Neenah

Oshkosh—Cars driven by Walter Strey, 40, route 1, Neenah, and Jake Cohen, 28, Algoma boulevard, Oshkosh, were damaged in a collision on Highway 41 a mile north of Neenah about 7:45 last night. Strey was going north and started to make a left turn as Cohen attempted to pass when the collision occurred, according to Winnebago county police. No one was injured.

Twin City Births

A son was born Thursday afternoon to Mr. and Mrs. Anton Dombrski, 818 Third street, Menasha, at Theda Clark hospital.

Seniors Told How To Get, Hold Jobs

Two Industrial Representatives Address Menasha Students

Menasha—Seniors of Menasha High school, together with faculty advisers, heard Walter Strong of the Marthon Paper Mills and William Kettlett of the Kimberly-Clark corporation discuss employment problems at a meeting in the activities room of the school Thursday night.

Mr. Strong discussed "How to get a job" while Mr. Kettlett talked on "How to hold a job." Following the talks, a question and answer period with general discussion was held.

The meeting was the sixth of the series of senior discussions arranged by the executive committee of the senior class. Speakers at previous meetings have included S. F. Shattuck of the Kimberly-Clark corporation, Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, president of Lawrence college; Walter E. Myer, editor of several educational publications; Clemens E. Luick of Ripon college; the Rev. William Willinger, assistant priest of St. Mary parish, and H. H. Helble, principal of Appleton High school.

Musical selections were given by Lamar Foth and Gerald Jensen. Carl Oederman had charge of the music and the general arrangements. The speakers were introduced by Richard Steffens, president of the senior class.

Bad Weather Delays Net Squad Workouts

Menasha—The Menasha High school tennis squad will resume practice as soon as the weather permits, according to O. F. Johanson, tennis coach. The playoff matches scheduled for this week were delayed by cold weather and have not been completed.

A probable varsity lineup for the first match of the season at Neenah High school Saturday morning has been named by the coach. Players in the official matches probably will be Earl Bublitz, George Bendt, Henry Landskron, William Schmitzer and William Machie. Landskron is the only letter winner.

Reserve players who probably will play practice matches include William Robinson, Harold Block, Gerald Winch, Don Grode, Donald Drucks, John Levandowski and John Kuester.

Glorifying Leftovers

A challenge, I call it, when I go to the refrigerator or pantry and find nothing but a little of this and a little of that waiting complacently on the shelves to see what I am going to do about them.

Leftovers can be transformed into some of the most delectable dishes that ever came on the table. Let's start with the meat that will be left over from Sunday's dinner. Suppose it is chicken. Try this chicken pie on Monday, which also uses up leftover vegetables. If you have stale bread left, and peaches taking up space in the refrigerator, you might combine them and make a delicious peach pudding for dessert.

Menu
Chicken Pie
Pickles
Orange and Grapefruit Salad
Raisin Bread
Peach Pudding
Chicken Pie

1 1/2 cups cooked chicken and cut up carrots
1 cup cooked chicken
1 cup cooked carrots
1 cup mushrooms
Add chicken, vegetables, and mushrooms, quartered and sautéed in butter, to the gravy. Pour into greased casserole and cover with the crust.

Crust
1 cup flour
1 cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon baking powder
Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Cut in shortening until finely blended. Add egg beaten with water. Roll dough 1/4 inch thick and cover casserole with it. Bake in a hot oven 450 degrees F. 20 to 30 minutes.

Orange and Grapefruit Salad
4 oranges
3 grapefruit
Lettuce
Peel oranges and grapefruit, separate into sections. Place alternate sections of orange and grapefruit on a bed of lettuce leaves. Top with mayonnaise or any desired dressing. Garnish with maraschino cherries.

Peach Pudding
2 cup canned peaches
1 1/2 cups peach juice
1 cup honey
1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups corn flakes
Dice peaches and combine with juice. Heat to boiling and add honey. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly, add eggs and beat well. Add nutmeg and vanilla. Add toasted bread cubes and corn flakes to creamed mixture. Put one half of the creamed mixture in a buttered 9x9 inch cake pan. Add peaches and cover with remaining creamed mixture. Bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees F. about 25 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

Should Have Known Lie of Diamond King

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"How much did you lose this evening, darling?" was Mrs. Dub's greeting to Mr. Dub on his return from his favorite bridge club. "Two dollars and ninety cents," Mr. Dub admitted with a deep sigh. "I had the rottenest cards! Held only one good hand all evening, and let me show you the break I got on that one!" He laid out the following hand:

♠ 10 7 2
♥ K Q 8 7
♦ J
♣ K J 10 8 6
WEST
♠ J 9 8 4
♥ A 10 8 5
♦ A 5 3 2
EAST
♠ Q 6
♥ 6 5 4 3 2
♦ 7 6 3 2

SOUTH
♥ A J 10 9
♦ A Q 9 4
♣ A Q 7

The bidding:
South West North East
1 heart 1 spade 2 hearts Pass
2 spades Pass 3 clubs Pass
3 diamonds Pass 4 hearts Pass
6 hearts Pass Pass Double
Pass Pass Redouble Pass

"I was South," Mr. Dub explained. "I think you will agree, my pet, that this was one time I didn't overbid and that the six heart contract we reached was more than justified. But look at those five hearts that East had! I did the best I could to make the contract, but, of course, I couldn't. West opened the club ace and shifted to a spade. I put up dummy's ten on the wild hope that it would hold the trick, but East covered with the queen and I had to win with the ace. Then I laid down the heart ace to see how bad a trump break I was going to get—and I saw, all right! I overtook the club queen and led the club jack. East discarded a spade and I did likewise. I led the club ten and East ruffed, so I overruled. I then led the jack and ten of hearts, over-taking in dummy and pulled East's last heart by leading dummy's king. On the third heart I threw a diamond, and on dummy's fifth club I threw another diamond. So all I needed now was the successful diamond finesse. But, of course, I could not be that lucky! West had the king and I was down one. On the next hand the opponents went game and rubber, and that ended a lovely evening."

I don't know what Mrs. Dub had to say about all this. Perhaps she clucked sympathetically, but I do know that Mr. Dub passed up a beautiful opportunity.

After winning the second trick with the spade ace and, at the third trick, laying down the heart ace, thereby discovering the horrible trump break, Mr. Dub should have given earnest consideration to the probable lie of the diamond king. He should have reasoned that West's spade bid, which had been shown to be back high, was almost certainly bolstered by the possession of the diamond king, as well as the club ace already lead. East's double of the slam had obviously been predicated on his partner's overall and his own holding of five trumps. The diamond king would be neither necessary to, nor a material part of, such a double, since it would lie under South's diamond bid.

Having decided that all the evidence favored West's holding the diamond king, Mr. Dub should have played as follows: Before leading to dummy's club suit, he should have cashed the spade king. Admittedly, this play would risk a run on East's part; that is, West might well have held a six card spade suit. But that was a risk that would have to be taken in order to play against the diamond king in the West hand. After cashing the spade king, the club queen should have been led to dummy and overtaken, and now on the club jack, it would do East no good to discard. He might as well trump. Mr. Dub would overtrump, then cash the heart jack and overtake the ten spot to draw East's last trump with dummy's king, while he, himself, discarded his low cards. The two good clubs now would be led and Mr. Dub would discard his four and nine of diamonds. With two cards left in all hands, dummy's would be a spade and the diamond king. East's would not matter. Mr. Dub's holding would be the A-Q of diamonds. West would be "up the creek." He would have to hold a spade to overtake dummy's remaining spade, hence would have to blank the diamond king. Thereupon, Mr. Dub would lead dummy's diamond jack and triumphantly go up with the ace, to drop the king and establish the queen.

I venture to say that Mr. Dub's $2.50 loss would have been amply covered if he had fulfilled this one contract.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

It is natural to argue back when criticized or attacked, but it isn't the best way to silence a nagging wife. Words aren't what she wants. And if you employ them, she grows more infuriated. Shakspeare's "Taming of the Shrew" should be a lesson to every husband like Sherman.

Case N-111: Sherman T., aged 31, is married to a business woman. "I think I better plan to get a divorce," he telephoned me yesterday, "for we aren't getting along very well."

"Sunday we quarreled off and on. As a matter of fact, it all began on Saturday night when I criticized a waiter at a night club and she grew irritated because she said I was making a scene. "Well, on Sunday the quarrel went on. I finally told her she was a small town girl who was trying to be a big shot in the city, and then she slapped me. "I didn't strike back, but I felt like it. She finally slapped me again, because she was so angry. Then she began to cry. "We were pretty cool toward each other the rest of the day. She didn't say goodbye when I left Monday morning, but I called later and she was crying. Dr. Crane, do you think we can make a go of our marriage?"

Diagnosis: Sherman has been married for six months, and this isn't the first time he has quarreled with his wife. Nor is it the first time he has called on me to tell him what I think of his marital chances. Every time he gets into a row, he telephones and wants to know if I don't think he should get a divorce. And I let him talk till he gets his ire vented via speech, whereupon I tactfully steer the conversation around to some of the compliments his wife paid him when she was last in my office.

I remind him of her beauty and her devotion; of the fact that she admires his intelligence and forcefulness, which are true statements but likewise put him into a different frame of mind.

"Pouring Oil on Angry Waters." He always leaves my office or ends our telephone conversation by deciding he has a fine wife. I have nursed this marriage along for six months already, and shall probably be needed for years to come, for this young couple are emotionally immature in many respects.

"Do you know why your wife was so irritated until she slapped you?" I asked Sherman. "Yes, she was angry at what I had said Saturday night."

But that wasn't the primary reason. She had felt affronted in her sexual vanity, for he hadn't admired her figure and kissed and caressed her enough.

Sherman is a salesman who is away most of the week. When he gets home, she wants something besides chatter about his sales that week and the show to which he will take her on Saturday night.

An Affronted Wife. When women crave physical affection which is not granted, they soon grow irritable. They begin to pick at their husbands and nag. These wives actually don't know what is wrong or why they become so irritable.

In fact, they become so conscience stricken afterwards that they will break into tears. But nagging is woman's age old method of trying to stimulate a man to lay hands on her.

A child may even risk a spanking if he can only divert his mother's attention back to himself from the guests who are preoccupying her time.

A woman will do the same. If Sherman had simply imprisoned his wife in his arms when she struck him and kissed her till she was breathless, she would have cried against his shoulder for a few minutes and then meekly snuggled against his shoulder as a happy wife.

But the usual male replies to criticism with equally basic remarks and the fight is on. Resist this natural impulse to strike back and you'll be surprised at the ease with which your wife will surrender. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish my bulletin on "How To Manage Nagging Wives." (Copyright, 1939)

Yet they think that because they cannot do something contrary to their natures they are not in love. They don't think that admiration and respect and congeniality and warm friendship, which is, after all, what married love turns into, are enough to marry on. That accounts for innumerable old maids and old bachelors who waited for the miracle to happen (that couldn't possibly befall them).

Dear Miss Dix—We have been married more than two years and love each other dearly, but still we quarrel and fight over every foolish thing. We haven't any real reason to spat, but we do it just the same. Jim has always had his way and I have always had mine, and neither of us want to give in to the other. We both have terrible tempers, but we don't want to part. We want to live together in peace and be happy, but we can't. Now Jim has started to drinking and I am a nervous wreck. Would having a baby help us to get along together? RED.

Answer: Having a baby certainly wouldn't solve your problem. It would just give you another bone to fight over. The possibilities for disagreement over a child are simply endless and you need for a breakdown and strain over the baby's feeding and rearing, whether it should be rocked and sung to sleep or put to bed in the dark.

Chat With a Soprano
At dinner, back at Aunt Sara's, Zeb announced his intention of working most of the night. "Orders," he said. "You never saw so many orders in your life. Matt's doing. Thought he had enough for this week and we had to phone Boston fifty times. Matt's ordering carload lots now. And Baked Beans'll be up to ten points by the end of the week. It's awfully funny. You say, what about a case of beans, and they say, why yes, they'll be nice to have in the house. It seems you don't ever buy baked beans to eat, you buy them to have in the house, like coal or flowers."

Answer: Under the circumstances, I agree with your mother that it would be very lacking in hospitality not to give the wedding guests something substantial to eat. But the menu does not have to be elaborate nor need any one be seated at table. In my opinion the best buffet menu for this early hour would be scrambled eggs and sausages or omelette and bacon, buttered rolls and breakfast coffee. And of course wedding cake and a fruit juice cup to drink the bride and groom's health.

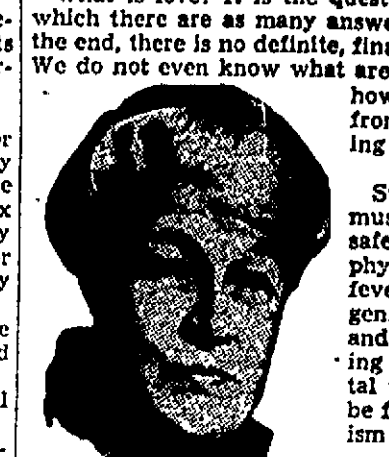

The Wedding Rings
Dear Mrs. Post: Are the wedding rings of the bride and groom supposed to match? My fiancé would like me to buy him a ring but he prefers a plain yellow band to wear on his little finger. I would like a white gold band set with tiny diamonds.

Answer: Your ring and his do not have to match. I am glad that your fiancé prefers to wear his ring on his little finger.

Love Is More Often Matter of Warm Friendship Than Emotion

BY DOROTHY DIX

DOROTHY DIX

What is love? It is the question that every human heart asks and to which there are as many answers as there are men and women. Yet, in the end, there is no definite, final answer at all. We are still left guessing. We do not even know what are the unmistakable symptoms of love and how to tell whether what we are suffering from is the grand passion or merely a passing fancy.

Still less do we know what kind of love we must have to make marriage a reasonably safe investment of our futures. Is love purely physical, a thing of thrills and chills and fevers? Or is it a thing of the spirit, a congenial mingling of souls, of friendship, and liking, admiration and respect and having the same tastes and habits enough capital to start marriage on? Or must marriage be filled with romance and poetry and idealism to be a success?

These are questions that millions of people ask themselves every day. One woman well enough to marry him or not says: "I have known a certain boy all my life. My family is crazy about him and his family is very anxious for the match. We like the same things and dislike the same things."

"We have the same memories, and have shared the same experiences and pleasures. He is steady, dependable and would make a wonderful husband and father. After seeing him at his best and worst for twenty years I don't think there could be any delusions in store for me."

"But I don't love him. I am very fond of him, but I don't thrill over him. I have always had the notion that some day the Right One would walk into my life and I would know it the minute I saw him. Should I hold out for this person, who up to now has lived only in my imagination, or should I take the boy whom I am sure has all of the qualities I could want in a husband?"

It has always seemed to me highly unfortunate that the accepted authorities on LOVE are novelists and poets and the movies, which deal with fancies instead of facts. These have taught us that we are struck all of a heap, as old nurses used to say, when we first behold our predestined mates; that we palpitate at the sound of their footsteps; that we grow hot and cold at their approach; that we thrill with indescribable bliss at their kisses.

Perhaps love does affect the highly neurotic in that way, but there are multitudes of sane, sensible men and women, with their feet on the ground, who never could experience all of this emotionalism.

Yet they think that because they cannot do something contrary to their natures they are not in love. They don't think that admiration and respect and congeniality and warm friendship, which is, after all, what married love turns into, are enough to marry on. That accounts for innumerable old maids and old bachelors who waited for the miracle to happen (that couldn't possibly befall them).

reached the ball park and Asey admitted that she was doing it rather well.

"Maybe so, but I never liked that song," Jane said. "It's so blatantly smug. As if no other crowd ever had spacious skies, or amber waves of grain, or purple mountain majesties or anything. It doesn't seem to sound right here, either. There are spacious skies, but—"

"Well," Asey said, "you can sing 'Oh, beautiful for bayberry bushes, for lots an' lots of sand, if you like. No one'll ever notice."

Jane laughed. "Now this one—what's this? People have been singing it the drop of a hat for weeks and I never yet have understood a word. I asked Mary—" she stopped, and bit her lip. "Mary didn't know. She said she just hummed a sort of obbligato."

"That," Asey said, "is Billingsgate's crowning opus. That is 'Billingsgate Beautiful.' The town anthem, by the fine Italian hand of Bessie Brinley."

Jane shivered and gritted her teeth. "Why? Why do they sing it? How can they? I mean, after all, you don't try to sing something like that from choice, or just to be nice to Mrs. Brinley?"

"Well," Asey said, "in a celebration like this, you got to sing something for brotherhood an' the cause, like—oh like—the 'Horst Wessel'."

"That name," Jane said, "always sounded to me as though it should be some sort of black sausage—well, that's over. Thank goodness! Asey, where are you—are you really going to talk with her? Well, can you tie that?"

A Bad Moment
Madame Meaux created Asey with a dazzling smile. In evening dress and with makeup, she was a far different woman from the hot perspiring bicyclist of the afternoon.

"Very nifty," Asey said. "You had 'em hanging on the ropes." "Sister Brinley," Madame Meaux told him, "wanted a soprano with volume, and she got one. I can make that trumpet sound sissier than a penny whistle. Say, have you seen Slade?"

"That's what I wanted to talk with you about—got a few minutes?"

"I've got an hour before I have to tear off Old Favorites, if that'll help."

"Fine," Asey said, "let your coat an' come along with Jane Warren an' me—"

"If you mean your girl friend she's walked out on you. I joined."

Genius Is Affliction Some Young Children Have to Bear

BY ANGELO PATRI

Genius is an affliction that some young children have to bear. It is no less an affliction because it is not recognized as such, but rather regarded as something rare in the way of good fortune. Parents are delighted to hear that genius has marked out one of their children for honorable mention in the world's news. They bend every effort and make any sort of sacrifice required or otherwise, to develop the child's gifts. But the child of genius is cursed from his birth, and it becomes the duty of his father and mother to lighten that curse by all means in their power.

A great gift robs childhood of its joy. It demands expression. It demands that that expression every hour of the precious span of carefree childhood allotted the genius. When other children are playing in freedom in the lots, racing madly with the wind, yelling and pushing and pulling and dancing and laughing in gay confusion he is herded into the isolation of the practice room, directed by this teacher, and finally by his fond parents. For him there is no carefree, mad delight. His childhood is devoured by his gift and its tendancy.

This genius-child goes to school. At once he is singled out for attention by masters. His schedule is personal to him. His interests are not those of the other children who, while they admire his gift, leave him to enjoy it while they enjoy their own, ordinary one, of freedom, work and play routine.

Often this child is precocious in the ways of the world. He speaks with authority. People listen to him and wonder. But all the while he speaks with the voice of a man, he lives in the spirit of a child, and a child he is in experience and knowledge of life's ways. He is a complicated problem for his parents who want to do what is right. How are they to direct a genius who has powers they can never hope to achieve, but who needs a bath, a diet schedule, a lesson in manners, guidance in daily living?

Even a genius must live as other men live. He must eat, sleep, work and play just as other children because that is the law of growth. His gift makes him lopsided. He is weighted on some phases of his growth and short on others. Maybe he can play a sonata perfectly, but he cannot handle a knife and fork and spoon acceptably. Or he may be the cleverest mathematician in the school and unable to dress himself.

When confronted with such a problem the parents should accept the gifted side, and calmly, exactly as though he were a most ordinary person, proceed to teach him as he is. Where he is mature teaching is not needed and where he is immature teaching begins. The possession of genius should not awe parents into allowing their children to grow up conspicuously lacking in the ordinary powers, customs and manners that everybody takes for granted.

This requires unusual patience and common sense, but it is not an impossible hope. A genius can be trained to cooperate with other people, to live comfortably with them, to help himself to become the wholesome, well-rounded personality that even a genius needs to be if he is to succeed.

No child can bring himself up unaided by the experience and skill of his elders, and we do less than our duty if we let him think he can.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Bacon should be cooked in a cold frying pan. It may be heated slowly and the fat poured off as soon as it collects, to be used later for browning and seasoning foods.

All vegetables should be drained thoroughly as soon as they are done. Allowing them to stand in water even a minute or two will make them watery.

Tomato seeds sown now in a box in the house will save you a considerable sum over the cost of buying the seedlings, and give you a better choice of variety.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

There is much to be said in favor of the modern dressing-table. Every woman should have one whether it is made out of an old crate or boasts an ornateness of which even Madame Pompadour might be justly proud! If properly placed and stocked, a dressing-table can be a boon in making the most of your beauty!

Your table should be low enough so that you may comfortably sit before it and view yourself from the top of your head to your waistline. It should be placed before a window or door so that the light may fall directly on you and be reflected in the mirror. A three-panel mirror, with swinging sides, is very handy but if you have a clear large single mirror hanging before you and a fairly large hand mirror to use for back views, you can get along very well.

The table should have either drawers or shelves covered with an attractive petticoat, so you may have collected in one spot all the beauty aids you need for a thorough going over. I have seen dressing-tables made from crates which were not only very pretty but served most adequately, so if you are truly interested in your beauty you can get busy and make a dressing-table!

How It Is Helpful
The more fact that you sit before the table, and not stand, is conducive to a more thorough beauty routine! Right within reach are the aids you need—creams, lotions, tissues, mirrors, etc. And when you view yourself in a candid light from a window or door, you are apt to be less impressed with your beauty than you would be if you were sitting under a soft, flattering light! Consequently you would take more time for the grooming needed to make you more attractive!

A candid light is excellent, almost necessary, for applying makeup as it should be worn. Artificial light, it minimizes color and what might appear to be a becoming blush indoors would be very gray when you stepped out into the daylight. Many a woman would not wear the color in rouge she does if she took the trouble to look at her face in a clear light after it had been made up.

A dressing-table also serves for keeping hidden the aids to personal hygiene that women require and thus relieves the family bathroom of them. And that is another good reason why you should have one in your bedroom!

More beauty to you!

The Home Gardener

By Edwin H. Perkins

The crocuses and other bulbous plants which are naturalized in lawns have about completed their blooming cycle and it is high time to give some thought to care of the lawn. Presuming it was fertilized with a quick acting lawn food about a month ago, the grass will be literally jumping out of the ground and yelling for the mower blades. If lawn feeding has not been done yet, a fertilizer high in nitrogen content should be applied. Fertilizers sold as 10-6-4 are best at this time. Follow the application with the hose and water thoroughly.

With the likelihood of freeze past and grass jumping out of the ground, it is time to get busy with the roller. Rolling should be done on a day when the soil is dry is never an obligation. Sometimes, it is true, nearest friends of the girl, even on occasion the family of the man, give the girl presents (usually linen for her trousseau) but only because they want to and not because they are expected to do so. An engraved or printed card announcing an engagement is not approved by etiquette. Correctly, if the personal announcements are made in the newspaper. Personal announcements should be made verbally or by written note.

Association for City Sport Names 9 Board Members

Directors of New Organization Will Elect Officers Saturday

New London — A New London Sports association was formed at the American Legion clubhouse last night with the adoption of by-laws and a plan of organization and the election of a board of nine directors.

Elected to the board were Walter Stewart, W. M. Knapstein and F. J. LaMarche for a term of three years; Leonard Clime, Lester Werner and G. A. Wells for a term of two years; W. T. Comstock, Ralph Impelman and Walter Spiering for one year. The group will meet to elect its officers at 12:30 Saturday noon at the Kozy Korner cafe.

Ex-officio members of the board, according to the by-laws, will be managers of all baseball teams in the city, other organized sports, and all other organizations, also, including the city recreation department, D. N. Stacy, high school coach.

Four General Sessions from April 1 to March 1 was designated as the fiscal year of the association with four general membership meetings scheduled the second Tuesday of March, June, September and December. The annual meeting was planned for the second Tuesday of March. The directors will meet the second Tuesday of every month and any other time on call.

The by-laws as revised and amended at adoption provide for a finance committee of three directors to assist the treasurer in his duties and to authorize all expenditures, subject to control by the board. An attendance of 20 was declared to constitute a quorum for normal business at any membership meeting.

Many details are still to be worked out but one of the first steps is to secure a large, active and interested membership and for the purpose a membership drive will be launched as soon as possible by the board of directors.

Three Speakers Will Go To Contest at DePere

New London — Three New London high school students will represent their school in a district forensic contest at East DePere Saturday. Alice Stanley will compete in serious declamation; Maurice Levine in oratory and Shirley Fostad in extemporaneous reading. The students will be accompanied by Miss Martha Linder, speech instructor, and H. H. Helms, superintendent of schools.

SHOWS $75 FISH

New London — After pleading guilty of drunken driving and illegal possession of a game fish before Justice Fred J. Rogers here Thursday morning, Merrill Boulac of Clintonville, above, claimed he was framed and this 60 pound surgeon was "planted" in the trunk of his car. He posed willingly with the big fish which still showed life. Arrested here Wednesday afternoon, Boulac was taken to Waupaca Thursday to begin two 90-day jail sentences in lieu of paying fines totaling $125 and costs, $50 for drunk driving and $75 for the fish. Part-Time Farm Students to Get Awards of Merit

Issue of Certificates Will Mark End of 24-Week Course

New London — Thirty-five young men of the Junior and Senior part-time farm schools conducted weekly at Washington High school will be awarded certificates of merit for satisfactory completion of the current 24-week course at a special program at the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock Monday night.

Attendance at 75 per cent of the meetings is one requirement to earn the certificates. Thirteen out of 18 boys who attended L. M. Warner's Wednesday afternoon classes for the younger boys and 22 out of 41 of the Monday night Senior ag group have qualified.

The certificates will be presented by H. H. Helms, superintendent of New London schools. Musical selections and a motion picture, "Friendly Valley," will follow a business meeting presided over by Melvin Lathrop, president of the joint group.

YOUNG WOOD CARVER AT WEYAUWEGA

Arlin Swanson, 11, a seventh grade pupil at Weyauwega, spends virtually all of his spare time at wood carving. He is pictured here with some typical examples of his work. Some of his carvings are on display at Weyauwega High school. Arlin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Swanson.

Surprise Parties Feature Midweek Social Activities

New London — A surprise party in honor of the fifteenth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Webb was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Edminister Wednesday evening.

The guests of honor were presented with a gift and cards entertained. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Corcoran of Appleton were out-of-town guests and Mrs. Corcoran and A. W. Kuehlman were prizes. Others at the party were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Macklin and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Christensen.

Three daughters and a niece of Mrs. Emma Ruhman entertained at a party at the E. J. Schoenrock home Wednesday evening in celebration of her birthday anniversary. The daughter-hostesses were Mrs. R. H. Gehrke of Black Creek, Mrs. Arthur Lasch and Mrs. E. J. Schoenrock. The niece was Mrs. Chester Merkel of Appleton. Mrs. Theresa Abraham, Mrs. Adolph Gehrke and members of the Friendly Eight club were guests. Prizes at luncheon were won by Mrs. Diana Curtis and Mrs. Albert Pomrenig.

Mrs. Henry Stichman was surprised at a party in celebration of her birthday anniversary at her home Wednesday evening. Verifies Beat Millers Two Games to Share First Place

Refreshment League

Standings:	W.	L.
Verifies	27	18
Miller High Lifes	27	18
Orange Kists	23	22
Eggers Log Tavern	15	30

New London — The Verifies pounded their way into a final place tie with the Miller High Lifes when they trimmed them two games in the last matches of the Refreshment league at Prabi's alleys last night. The Dairymen cracked a new high team game of 948 in their first game to grab off that prize money.

Wilford Cupp paced the winners with a 568 series in lines of 190, 198 and 180 while Carl Ebert smashed 562 with a 206 game for the High Lifes. The Log Taverns dropped their last two games to the Kists.

On the Verifies squad were C. H. Kellogg, Clyde Roepke, Cupp, Ed Wolfe and Russell Berzili; on the High Life quintet, James Graham, Frank Miller, Marshall Ladwig, Carl Ebert and Earl Frappy.

The Verifies also held high 3-game of 2615 for the second half. Clyde Roepke and Glen Marks shared individual series honors with 592 and Lester Meshke held high single game of 245.

Valoise Wagner Gets New Position at Store

New London — Miss Valoise Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wagner, this week accepted the position of bookkeeper and secretary at the H. B. Crispy department store. She succeeds Miss Erna Gruetzmaier who resigned after two years in the position. She plans to go to Milwaukee soon.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Spaulding of Waupaca at Community hospital Tuesday night. Mrs. Ben Manske, Greenville, underwent an operation at Community hospital, library work and highway maintenance.

The vocational guidance committee of the high school, Miss Laura Shoemaker, Miss Gertrude Knudson, William Cullum and Harold Canaan, have worked with the Lions committee-Ray Pinkerton and Harry Rawson—for some weeks to make the local counseling days a success.

Johns Fights Closed Shop at Algoma Mill

Algoma — The carpenters and joiners union (A. F. of L.) at the Algoma Plumber's Woodwork factory went on strike yesterday in what leaders said was a demand for a closed shop.

Joshua L. Johns, Eighth district congressman, is company president. Here last weekend, Johns said there could be no closed shop in the plant.

IF YOU FEEL SUNK

Read this and cheer up

Are you so blue that life is no longer worth living? Do you cry really? Do you feel low, mean, depressed—just absolutely SUNK? Then here's good news for you in case you need a good general system tonic—just take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Let its wholesome herbs and roots help Nature build up more physical resistance and tone up your system, so that it can more easily throw off the "blues" and give more energy to enjoy life.

MILLIONS of women have depended upon this Compound and have passed the word along to friends and neighbors, and to their children.

Edison Team Beats Alumni to Cop City Volleyball Pennant

New London — The Edison won the men's city volleyball championship by easily defeating the Alumni, first half winners, three straight games at the Washington High school gym last night. The champions won the first two games by a score of 15-10 and the last by 15-5.

The winners showed a strong offense with Walter Stewart starring, gaining many points on serving. The alumni featured on defense with Donald and Evan Stern and Eugene Eggers the outstanding performers.

On the championship squad are James Lockyear, captain, Walter Stewart, Donald Hoer, G. F. Wernberg, Elmer Helgeson, Merlin Sennett and Arthur Bunke.

Thirty-eight men participated in the volleyball tournament conducted each week through the winter by R. M. Shortell, city recreation director.

Milwaukee Man Takes Over Store Department

New London — L. E. Edler of Milwaukee this week took over the paint and household ware department of the John-Harvey store at North Water and N. Pearl streets. The department will be operated under the name of the Badger Paint store while J. F. Seering will continue management of the John-Harvey department store one door west in the same building. Mr. and Mrs. Edler are making their residence in New London at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Nock.

Counseling Days At Waupaca High

Special Guidance in Planning Vocations Given to Students

Waupaca — Special assistance and guidance is being given students of the high school this week to help them select their future vocations, by instituting "local counseling days" and setting aside the last period of the afternoon for that purpose. Cooperating with Superintendent Lester M. Emans and his faculty for some weeks, the Lions club has made it possible to procure local business men to put before the students interested enough to attend their lectures, the problems involved in their particular lines of business. Students were advised by their teachers not to attend any lecture unless interested in that particular field, but rather to seek a conference with one who might be able to assist in a degree in selecting a vocation.

Vocations and professions which are being represented during the week by local advisers are medicine, nursing, retail merchandising, secretarial work, restaurant manager, plasterer, oil burners, telegraphy and cable, garage management, veterinarian, domestic maids, public utility, carpentry, painting, pharmacy, clerking, metal work, law, machinery, beauty culture, gasoline, distribution, masonry.

BUT IT'S A CLUE ON WHICH FLINT HOPES TO VERIFY LANNY'S STORY.

LANNY GAVE ME THIS BUTTON. HE SAID HE TORE IT OFF THE COAT OF THE MAN WHO WAS TRYING TO COMMIT ROBBERY IN THE HOTEL.

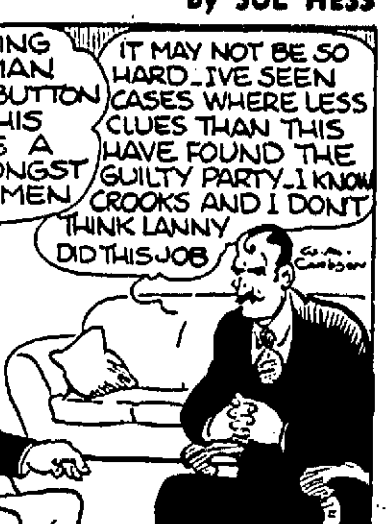

Button, Button—Whose Button?

RUDY, LANNY GAVE ME THIS BUTTON. HE SAID HE TORE IT OFF THE COAT OF THE MAN WHO WAS TRYING TO COMMIT ROBBERY IN THE HOTEL.

IT TOOK HIM A LONG TIME TO PRODUCE THIS BUTTON AND YOU STILL THINK HE'S INNOCENT.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

BUILDING AN OCEAN LINER

V.—Launching a Vessel
After long months in getting the hull and some of the other parts ready, the shipbuilders prepare for the launching.

Before the great day comes, the vessel is calked—that is, it is made watertight. The old-fashioned way of calking is to press tarred oakum, or some other fiber of the sort, into the seams between the planks. Later the seams may be covered with melted pitch.

The Normandie sliding into water at launching in 1932.

A modern way of calking a liner is with the help of an air-hammer chisel. This chisel forces the ends of the plates together. Sometimes a cold red lead is poured into the seams, and it quickly hardens to make a watertight joint.

The heavy timbers, on which the new vessel rests, serve as tracks or "ways" to the water. They are laid to slope in the right direction.

The common method of launching a ship is by letting it slide down the ways, stern foremost. Some large vessels have been launched sidewise, or "broadside," but in most of the world's shipyards that method is not favored.

The slope of the ways is not very steep. There may be barely 25 feet of drop in 800 feet of length. This is enough for sliding when the ways are waxed.

The props are removed, and crowds of people watch men take away the "doghouse" planks. Then the vessel slides slowly toward the water.

Someone, chosen for the honor, breaks a bottle of liquid by striking it against the ship. Wine, especially champagne, has been the common liquid used to "christen" new vessels, but Mrs. Roosevelt used "water of the seven seas" for this purpose a few weeks ago.

The farther it goes down the faster the boat moves. At last it enters the water with a great splash, and soon afterward is brought to anchor.

At the time of launching, a new ocean liner is far from being finished. It may not contain the engines, and in that case huge cranes are used to put them aboard. Carpenters, electricians and others also have work to do. Months are likely to pass by before the "maiden voyage."

Speaking of electricians, it is interesting to note that many miles of electric wire went into the "Queen Mary" to carry the current for 30,000 electric light bulbs.

Electricity also is used on this vessel to work the iron mikes, to pump water for the swimming pools, to hoist the anchors, and for other purposes.

In the "Normandie" there is a dining room as long as a football gridiron. This great room is air-conditioned.

(For General Interest section of your scrapbook.)
The leaflet called "Seven Wonders of the World" may be had by sending a 3c stamped, return envelope to me in care of the Post-Crescent.

Vote $2,000,000 For Completion Of Florida Canal

House Committee Takes Action in Closed Meeting; Vote Is 10 to 6

Washington—The house rivers and harbors committee approved today a bill by Chairman Mansfield (D-Tex.) to authorize completion of the $2,000,000 Florida ship canal.

Representative Green (D-Fla.) said the vote was 10 to 6. The action was taken in a closed meeting.

The Mansfield bill would authorize appropriations from time to time to complete the controversial waterway project.

The measure was based upon a favorable report in 1937 by the former chief of army engineers, Major-General Edward M. Markham.

The president, under the bill's provisions, would be asked to determine before the canal is completed whether tolls should be levied on transiting ships.

Mr. Roosevelt had suggested these charges as a means of paying off the construction cost.

Green said Mansfield promised to take necessary steps to obtain a house vote on the bill soon.

It was the second time the house committee had voted to approve the cross-state waterway. The bill first was reported favorably in 1937, but did not reach a house vote.

Reverses Findings

Markham's favorable report reversed findings of the war department's board of engineers, which held that a canal of adequate dimensions would cost $263,000,000.

A canal at that cost, it held, was unsound.

President Roosevelt started the project in 1935 with allocations of relief money totaling $3,400,000.

Work was abandoned after the new year when congress refused to provide additional sums for its completion.

The canal provoked one of the liveliest disputes of the 1938 congress. After several attempts, canal advocates obtained a favorable vote in the senate despite spirited opposition from Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and others.

But the project was rejected by the house.

Vandenberg is leading another anti-canal campaign in the senate, where the issue now is before the commerce committee. A vote there is expected soon.

The controversy was revived early in this session when the president wrote letters to chairmen of the house and senate committees urging that the project be completed.

OLD HOME WEEK MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

the local swells in that box. And you'd better know you're being watched, if that sort of thing matters to you."

"Half of the fun of these things is the nice new gossip," Asey said. "Billingsgate's member for years how I upped an' made off with their soprano. Hop along."

He gave no indication of seeing either Aunt Sara's wink or Jane's annoyed stare as he escorted Madame Meaux to the roadster.

Once in the car, he had a bad moment. All he wanted was to ask questions about Slade, but he had forgotten that the eyes of Billingsgate were upon him.

Madame Meaux solved the problem. "What I'd like," she said, "is a couple of dogs with mustard, and a sundae with a lot of marshmallow. Sister B. has this feeling that soprano's don't eat."

"We'll remedy that," Asey said gratefully. "By the way, is—er—Mike-a-u-x your real name?" "My real name happens to be Emily Slade. And I know who you are, because I asked that guy at the garage."

"Relation to Mike?" "His brother was my first husband. Died five years ago, and don't say you're sorry, because no one was. Charley Slade was a punk. Now, her manner changed. 'Let's get some food, and you tell me why the great detective wants to know about Mike. You do, don't you?'"

"First we'll eat," Asey said, "and then we'll talk with him." She ate her hot dogs and devoured two sundaes with a whole-hearted abandon that charmed Asey.

"There," she pushed away the dish, "now what's the trouble?" "Are you," Asey asked, "enough of a menace in Slade's life for him to decamp at the sight of you?"

"She's scared stiff!" "Well," Madame Meaux said thoughtfully, "he owes me around four hundred dollars, and he knows it, and I admit I had some hope of prying it out of him. I helped him with a hospital bill. That's all I can think of. He and I got along all right. Oh, it was true, what I told you about working on those projects. We did. But I didn't know who you were then, and it didn't seem necessary for me to tell you any more."

"Quite right. So he owed you money. That may be why he's vanished, leavin' what seems to be a genuine note sayin' he'll be back next week. But we kind of wondered."

"Must be. But don't let that give you any wrong ideas about Mike. He's a right enough sort. My money's safe with him. Say, he hasn't done anything, has he?"

"Not that I know of," Asey said. "But—say, it's time I got you back. Only—if you see him, or he gets any message to you, will you let me know?"

"Sure." They got up from the table. "I don't understand—hm—hm what?" Asey inquired as they got into the roadster.

"Your specialty is murders, isn't it? And the town's making money—no, don't say anything. I shan't. Maybe I'll pick you up something. You hear a lot in a town like this, in a place like mine. Singers and manicurists, they hear everything."

"How," Asey had no fear of telling her anything, even if she guessed the whole business, "how'll you know what to listen to?"

"I shall probably hear enough about you," she said, "to last a lifetime. Drop me here, will you? Thanks. I got to see Upjohn. Sorry I can't ask you if there's any number you want. Upjohn and Brinley planned everything—and you'll hear me sparring over 'Chloe' with that trumpet, clear in the next town. So long."

"Jane left her at the rear of the band stand, and then went to join Aunt Sara and Jeff."

"Jane is pretty sore," Sara told him. "She's not accustomed to being left for blondes. Is she as much fun as she looks, by the way? I thought so. Women like that either have a sense of humor, or they don't. No two ways about it. Anyway, Jane's a little dazed, and I'm sure it's doing her a world of good. Jane is just a little too engrossed in Jane, I think."

"It's all her fault for not believing what she's told," Asey said. "Where'd she go?"

"She's dancing with the Mitchell boy. Eloise is helping with refreshments. We get 'em free. Ah, the graft us politicians' wives do get!"

"It's somethin' fierce," Asey said. "Canned fruit punch an' two fig newtons. What about Jane, Sara?"

"Go easy with her. She's got a heart of gold, but—"

"But gold is metal," Asey said. "Soft, but still metal."

"Quite right. So he owed you money. That may be why he's vanished, leavin' what seems to be a genuine note sayin' he'll be back next week. But we kind of wondered."

Judge Heinemann Will Hold Probate Hearings

Ten probate cases will be heard by Judge Fred V. Heinemann at a special term of county court Tuesday, April 18. Scheduled cases are hearing on administration in the estates of George Notaras and Thekla Helinski, hearing on the will of Hannah Chenevert, hearings on claims in the estates of Nora McGinn, Augustin Ducl Grignon, William Guilfoyle and John Vandenberg, and hearings on final account in the estates of Anna Henzl, Gustave Mauthe and James F. Kamba.

Roosevelt Band Will Make First Appearance

The Roosevelt Junior High school band will make its first public appearance when it entertains the student body this afternoon in the school auditorium. The band has about 45 members and was trained by E. C. Moore, director and Edmund Marly, assistant.

"She has that manner, but it's indigenous to her particular generation. I think. She'd be first to cry at the sight of a run-over dog. And right now she's scared stiff. Go easy with her. Asey. Don't rush, and don't bully. You'll find out in time what you want. She's awfully scared, and awfully mixed up, and she wants to lie down and cry. I think there's something more than Mary that's bothering her, too, even though she adored Mary. And you'll find—hullo, Jane. The prodigal's returned."

"Thinks he's going to be welcomed back into the bosom of our select group, does he, after gallivanting—"

"I guess I know," Asey said sadly. "When I'm not wanted. Yes-siree, One-Hint Mayo, that's what they call me. I'm goin' over to the Town Hall an' look around, an' leave you dance-mad things to your fate. See you later."
